AND THE COMPLETE SCOOP ON EARTH-WORM JIM 2!

IT’S AN EARTHWORM JIM 2 EXTRAVAGANZA! THIS MONTH WE’RE REVEALING 11 STAGE CODES, 20 CHEAT CODES AND ANSWERS TO 46 OF SALLY’S WACKY QUIZ QUESTIONS. WE EVEN HAVE THE INSIDE SCOOP ON SECRET LEVEL NUMBER 37! TAKE THAT, WORM BOY!
In Volume 80 we asked what you thought of the new look to Nintendo Power. Here's a small sampling of the many comments we've received.

Better Letters
I think it's great that you've expanded the Player's Pulse section! It's nice to read up on what other players have done or are doing. And I've found that they have wonderful ideas and opinions. Keep it up!

A Plain Brown Envelope, Please
About the changes in Volume 80, you've really crammed in the goods! But I have to talk about the redesign of Classified Info. You've got to change it back! That manila folder style is a tradition. And you probably already know about it, but please don't cut off the captions below the pictures in Counselors' Corner. Also, I've read all of the reviews and I think they're very informative. Then in Volume 68 you changed the way the magazine looked and for the most part I really didn't like it. However, in Volume 80 you changed it again and I have to honestly say that I really do like it. From the addition of one page to Player's Pulse to the redesigned Classified Information, everything is designed to look very, very cool. I have to say that this magazine now really rocks!

I love the Power Charts and Take Two reviews. I also love the fact that Nintendo Power is a "CLEAN" magazine, without any dirty advertisements. Thanks for such a great magazine!

think your Contents Page is way better than the old one. Of course, the Player’s Pulse is better. I like the old Power Charts better than the new ones. Your new Classified Information is superior to your old one. I am glad Counselors’ Corner is still the same. I like your new Arena, but it’s too flashy. The new icons in Now Playing are awesome! Pak Watch is always cool. Send my regards to Mario.

Painting for Mario Paint
For the most part, the changes you’ve made have been good. But, some things should remain sacred. For instance, you’ve changed the border of Classified Information. It’s practically unrecognizable! And every time you change the Contents Page, it gets harder to read. Hey, why don’t you guys add a Mario Paint artwork section, like you have an Envelope Art section?

Kenneth Pardue

Don’t tell Mario Painters out there, listen up. Send in your masterpieces and we’ll run the best!

No humor for Rumor
I am 13, and I like the pictures of cake Game Boys and such. I myself once sent in a pic of an anwing made of Legos. I also like the layout. It is easy to find things and there isn’t too much gibberish, just what people want. And please no more rumors. I once looked in an EGM (a premier rumor mag) and they had everything wrong. They even put in the Japanese name of the Mega Man X bosses.

Take a Hint—Please!
The new Nintendo Power page setups are rocking with all the new artwork and new layouts for the regular sections. The only problem that I have is that the articles about the games have gone from the first grade level, where you told everything in great detail, to Super Pro status, where there is a lot about the games’ graphics and sound but not a lot of gameplay hints. Don’t get me wrong, I like the fact that the articles are not geared to make me feel like an idiot, but at points in a game, I like to know a bit more about where I am than what’s provided by a scaled-down map and a couple of words.

Classy Classified Information
The changes you’ve made to the ‘96 Nintendo Power are great!! I really like how you’ve made it look so computerized for the Classified Information. And the Arena looks totally cool. Pak Watch is cool too. I also got a kick out of the Earthworm Jim game in the back of the Bonus Issue. Overall, IT’S GREAT!! (Thanks, I had to get that out!!!)

The Loyal Opposition
I have been a loyal buyer and subscriber of Nintendo Power since its birth, and would like to give you a few comments on your magazine. I’ve always respected you guys, but I do have a few concerns about

Nintendo Power. I saw that you printed a letter from a reader named Charles Donkey Kong Country 2 continues to dominate the Top 20, but Diddy and Dixie are keeping sharp eyes out for Super Mario RPG. This much-anticipated title has been edging up the Most Wanted charts for months. Meanwhile, the animated antics of Buzz Lightyear and Woody push Toy Story onto the Most Wanted chart for the first time!

Summers in Volume 81, and I agree with his point. You seem to only print letters that are short and say something to the effect of “Your magazine rules! Virtual Boy is great! I love your mag!” Personally, I find these letters annoying. I like long letters that address some serious points, whether it compliments your magazine or not. Does this help you? Anyway, I hope you listen to your readers, as they are the ones with the best suggestions for your magazine. I doubt that you will print this letter, since letters like these are ones I would like to see printed in Nintendo Power but don’t.

Seeing through the Smoked Screen

All of the so-called “greatest video games, companies, systems and magazines on earth” are trying hard to make you look like a slow, lazy company. I know that it’s all an overdriven, hyped-out-of-this-world smoke screen. For example, Sega’s Vectorman has computer-modeled graphics that are only possible on the Genesis because they’re simplified down to poorly colored animation. Donkey Kong Country did computer-modeled graphics FIRST AND BETTER!

The Plot Thickens

I think that many of the story lines in RPGs are too simple. The story in Final Fantasy III was wonderful because of all the complications and twists. If all games were like that they would be perfect.

Georgia Gamer Goes Ga-Ga for RPGs

I LOVE the Epic Center. I recently started playing RPGs after I rented Final Fantasy III out of boredom and because I heard it was really good. It was so addictive that I went out and bought Breath of Fire. I just completed that game and now I am playing Illusion of Gaia, Final Fantasy Mystic Quest and Final Fantasy II, all at the same time! Anyway, thanks again for adding the Epic Center. It is a great help to us RPGers.

The rebels have fled from Hoth and the Empire has begun building a second Death Star, but somewhere in the shadows of the galaxy another desperate struggle has begun. LucasArts and Nintendo are teaming up to bring the world a new Star Wars adventure for the Nintendo 64 this fall. Join us now as Power penetrates the shadows of this secret project for the first time.
The Shadows of the Empire development team at LucasArts has come out of the shadows at last. You can almost hear the sigh of relief when you enter the headquarters of LucasArts in San Rafael, California. For nearly two years the group of programmers, designers, animators and artists has labored, in a virtual black hole on one of the first Nintendo 64 titles. Now, the curtain is up and the development team is rightfully proud of its accomplishments.

It wasn't easy working in a black hole. Initially, the team members began designing the game with Silicon Graphics Onyx workstations, knowing that the Reality Co-processor in the Nintendo 64 was based on the chip used in the Onyxs. Later, they received the Nintendo 64 emulator and further specs on the machine and the revolutionary controller, but until last year, they didn't have the actual development kit. Even so, they couldn't talk about the project with their colleagues and they couldn't show them their work. They even had to keep their hands and the new controller pads in a box when they played the game so that passersby wouldn't inadvertently see the unit. "We used to tell people that this controller was so unique that you stuck your hands in a box of ooze and it absorbed your thoughts," joked Jon Knowles, the lead artist and one of the guiding lights of Shadows, adding, "Of course, you had to think in Japanese to make it work." But now, the boxes are gone and the shadows have dwindled into the background. Revealed for the first time in all of its richness is an adventure in the LucasArts tradition, featuring five modes of play in 12 levels, an exciting new Star Wars story, but most importantly of all, a sizzling experience on the Nintendo 64.

What we saw, at about 50% to 70% of completion, was an impressive game that takes full advantage of the Nintendo 64's superior 3-D graphics capabilities. Some of the catchphrases you'll be hearing in the future with regard to the Nintendo 64 include anti-aliasing, load management, Z buffering and trilinear mip map interpolation. The terms sound pretty technical, but the beauty of the Nintendo 64 is that it carries out these resource-consuming graphics functions on its own so programmers don't have to devote valuable CPU processing time to them. Eric Johnston, the project's Technical Lead, explained how he used Z buffering in order to keep control over the 3-D environments. "In the Hoth battle, we used Z buffering on all the main objects, such as ships, enemies and droids. What that means is that the walkers, droids and snow speeders all appear where they should in relationship to the rest of the environment from any perspective. The Reality Co-processor does all this in real time. On other systems, you have to track objects and orient them using software routines that eat up CPU time. That slows down the action on the screen or limits other functions, like how many objects you can use and the detail of the texture mapping."

What Z buffering means for players is that the game world seems as solid and logical as the real world. You can fly around an object and that object will look just as it should from the side or rear or any angle in between, and all the objects that appear in the background are in the right places, too. The trilinear mip map interpolation feature of the Reality Co-processor also helps by keeping detailed texture maps looking sharp even at extremely close range while other functions keep texture maps proportioned and angled correctly so that surfaces look natural, not stretched or warped as is often the case on other video game systems. The anti-aliasing feature helps reduce the jagged look of angled lines drawn on the screen so that polygon objects seem sharp no matter how they are positioned. The load management feature keeps in view distant objects that, on other systems, pop on or off depending on how close they are to the viewer. "You don't have objects suddenly appearing where there was nothing before," explained Mark Haigh-Hutchinson, the Project Leader and Senior Programmer. "It's particularly impressive in stages like our race through Tatooine on speeder bikes. This is one of the most crowded areas I've ever seen in a video game, but you don't have any popping. Every building and object is there in the distance, growing larger as you approach." The programmers at LucasArts, including Eric and Mark, told us that the Nintendo 64 increases the speed and raises the quality of the games to a whole new level. It's going to have the rest of industry playing catch-up.
A NEW CHAPTER

In that same far away galaxy where Luke Skywalker, Han Solo and Princess Leia battle the tyranny of the Empire, other characters and organizations struggle for power, hidden in the shadows of the Imperial throne. We asked Howard Roffman, the Vice President of Licensing at Lucasfilm Ltd., how this new story came together.

“We'd been doing extensions of the Star Wars universe in different types of media for several years, including the successful Star Wars novels. Another significant medium was the comics. With the Dark Horse line of comics, we'd done a lot of spin-off stories based on Star Wars. And LucasArts was making new Star Wars stories in their games all the time. We thought it would be interesting to tie everything together and make it a real event. But the big question was, how do you go about making a story that is special enough to draw people in? To start with, we wanted to go back into the trilogy where familiar characters could be found and where you have the dramatic conflict between the Rebels and the Empire. After thinking about it, we decided that it would be very cool to explore this dark underworld of crime, which had been hinted at in the movies. There was already a suggestion that the underworld was in league with the Empire. When Darth Vader hires bounty hunters in The Empire Strikes Back, you can see the relationship is already there. We just expanded on this idea. We gave the crime organization the name Black Sun, and we set up the leader of Black Sun in opposition to Darth Vader. On the one side of the Emperor you have Vader, on the other side, you have the leader of Black Sun, and Shadows of the Empire is about this power struggle, at least in part.”

In particular, Shadows of the Empire is the story of one heroic figure from the seedier side of the space lanes who helps the rebellion behind the scenes. Although the novel and comic books will deal with many characters, the game will follow this hero’s exploits as he dashes about the galaxy. The story begins on Hoth where our hero makes his initial rebel connection with Han Solo. In fact, the character is a lot like Han—he’s a smuggler and adventurer who inhabits that shadowy underworld of the Empire.

Later, the story continues between the times of The Empire Strikes Back and Return of the Jedi. “I always thought there were a lot of unanswered questions about this time,” Jon explained, “from Luke showing up in Return of the Jedi as a full-fledged Jedi to Han being encased within Jabba’s palace. How did that happen? Did Bobba Fett just zip on over or did he run into some trouble along the way?”

STAGES, MOVES, CRITTERS AND MORE

True to previous Star Wars games for the Super NES, Shadows of the Empire packs in five different modes of play. In the beginning of the game, you fly a snow speeder over the frozen terrain of Hoth while Imperial walkers and droids fill the air with laser blasts. The realistic flight simulation offers a basin of freedom within a basin of about two miles circumference, but it isn’t unlimited as in LucasArts’ Tie Fighter. “We want to keep players on the path of fun,” explained Jon Knoles. “If you try to fly over the mountains, the game nudges you back toward the basin. But within this arena, you have total freedom of movement.” As we learned from play testing the stage, you have so much freedom that you can have a blast just flying the speeder, dodging the laser shots and ducking between the legs of giant ATST walkers. The level of graphic detail extends to the animation of wing flaps as you bank or brake, and the sounds of both the speeder and the walkers were taken directly from the movie. The impact really gets to you when you blow up a droid and fly straight through its expanding fireball whoosh!

Once you whet your appetite on Hoth, the game launches into a series of varying action modes. The first-person action mode resembles LucasArts’ computer game hit, Dark Forces. As the hero of the game, you must undertake missions in hostile territory, such as inside an Imperial ship. Your perspective can be “in the head,” as the team likes to call a first-person view, or behind the shoulder for a wider view that lets you see your character moving in front of you. LucasArts also adds special C-Button camera controls, allowing players to choose other views such as side-angles.

The detailed graphics used in these stages surpass everything previously done in this genre, including Dark Forces and Doom II. But if you gawk overly long at the pretty pictures, you can kiss your Wookie goodbye, because the environments are filled with danger. “The action stages aren’t just 2-D mazes,” explained Mark. “For one thing, they were designed by the Dark Forces team and architectural students so it isn’t just a jumble of mazes, but structures with logical functions for the Star Wars universe. We also wanted to make them truly 3-D, and that meant giving them a vertical component.”

Jon demonstrated one stage in which the hero uses a jet pack to scout out multiple vertical areas of an enemy freighter. “You have to be aware of things all around you and above you. Strategically, there’s a lot of area to explore. We’ve also hidden a lot of things here.”

Another play mode borrows from the Super NES Star Wars games and the genre of shooters. Players find themselves manning the laser turrets in a Millenium Falcon-type space ship. Although you don’t fly the ship, you do have to blast everything in sight using your weapons. Gunners have full rotation within the gunner’s bubble and the action is furious.

In still another mode, you’ll chase a smuggler through the crowded (and narrow) streets of Mos Eisley on a speeder bike. “This isn’t like in a CD game where you have one pre-rendered path to follow,” Mark pointed out. “You have freedom to move your speeder in the street, or down side streets that might lead to a short cut.” If this expanded Mos Eisley is unfamiliar to you, wait until the release of the Special Edition Star Wars movie in 1997. LucasArts worked with the team at Industrial Light and Magic to borrow the setting from the new movie scene for the game. According to the development team, Shadows of the Empire contains even more surprises, such as a battle with Boba Fett and a stupendous ending, but they weren’t willing to show us quite that much yet.

“As always, we’ll have lots of huge bosses,” said Jon, “but they’re all fully 3-D. For instance, there’s one place where you face one of the big ATST walkers on foot, and that can get pretty scary when the cockpit pivots around and looks right down at you.”

Eric filled us in on how the LucasArts’ team went to new lengths in adding tracking and artificial intelligence to the game. “Since the Nintendo 64 takes the complex graphics functions away from the CPU, we found we had all this processing power just idling. We decided one way to use that power was by adding extra AI. For instance, we can give 3-D Tie Fighters advanced, independent tracking, no problem. Or when you're facing the big boss characters, they'll always look for you.” Mark added that normal AI for characters is really what he calls Artificial Idiocy, “because you're just trying to make them look less stupid. We've been able to give these enemies a truly menacing quality.” Jon Knoles described one stage where you're moving down a tunnel filled with fog, and then, suddenly...well, that would take away the surprise. When we asked the team how it designed enemy movements and attacks, they showed us a special 3-D computer arena littered with the burnt out husks of Imperial droids, space ships and alien creatures. To test a design, the programmers place the new enemy in the arena and then send in the hero to blast it to bits. “It's a great way to see how enemies behave in combat, but it's also a good place to test your own skills.” Jon told us.

As for control between the different stages, the team wanted there to be no confusion as you switched between flying, action and shooting stages. “We try to keep some consistency,” said Mark. “There may be some new features between stages, but players won't have any trouble shifting. This is really the best controller I've ever seen, but early on we really didn't know what it was going to be like. Then we got a prototype for the Onyx in early 1995.”

Eric added, “We were excited to learn about the analog joy stick. In addition to moving a vehicle or moving a character, you can also move a character's head around independently while walking using the joy pad or joy

When the evil Wizzard of Wolff tries to corner the market on pork futures, it's up to brave Bruno Pigg to make the world safe for donut-loving oinkers!

GALLANT KNIGHTS OF THE ROUND PASTRY

Titus brings home the bacon in this hip update of an ancient tale. It seems that the three not-so-little piggs have passed up careers in home construction, instead plunging snout-first into the donut business. Ah, but a dark shadow has fallen over the smiling kingdom of the piggs. In a bid to satisfy his overwhelming hankering for roast pigg, the evil Wizzard of Wolff has unleashed a howling pack of fanged foes. It's up to Bruno, the boss of the hogs and chief donut taster to boot, to save the day.

Armed with his trusty cutlass and some explosive donuts, brave Bruno must battle through an eight-course wolf meal. In the tradition of Boogerman and The Mask, Power Piggs stirs a healthy dose of humor into the action. Game-players seeking a fun Pak that doesn't take itself too seriously should check it out!
POWER PIGGS OF THE DARK AGE

Bruno can thank Gilbert, the inventor pigg, for an impressive array of edible armaments. These sweet missiles will leave a bitter taste in the mouths of Bruno's enemies. Whenever you see Gilbert's friendly face, you know you've reached a continuation point.

Chocolate

Get ready for a serious carbo load. Just munch on 100 donut holes and you'll win an extra life.

Powdered

These munchable missiles fly straight and inflict minor damage. They work best against slow-moving enemies on the same level as Bruno.

Frosted

Frosted Donuts carry the biggest payload! One of these high-calorie pastries will wipe out every pig pursuer in sight.

Plain

Stuff yourself and boost your life meter by breaking open crates and vanquishing enemies to find plain donuts.

Cruller

Double-dipped for maximum explosiveness, the Cruller also has sophisticated homing technology.

Donut Holes

Get ready for a serious carbo load. Just munch on 100 donut holes and you'll win an extra life.

HOW A PORK CHOPS ITS ENEMIES

Bruno is hardly the most graceful sword-fighter around, but he always puts his considerable weight behind each roundhouse swing! All but the toughest enemies tremble and fall apart after a few swipes from Bruno's cutlass. Because Bruno can unleash his mighty swing even when crouching down, he can sneak up on enemies who are shooting arrows and fireballs at him.

Butt Slam

Rattle the landscape by jumping and then pressing Down on the Control Pad while Bruno is in the air. This earth-shaking move cracks crates wide open. It also allows Bruno to return to earth when he's floating in the updraft from a blowhole. However, even the tiniest enemies will laugh if you try to pull this move on them.

Spin Jump

While floating over a blowhole, press Left or Right on the Control Pad, then jump. This move will catapult Bruno away from the airstream. Sometimes, Bruno will have to jump to a platform that's seemingly too high. Pressing Up while Spin Jumping at the top of a blowhole's airstream will catapult Bruno even higher. Note, too, that Bruno will obtain maximum lift if he enters at the bottom of an airstream.

Chocolate
COURSE ONE
Beautiful Downtown Pigg

Toting his cutlass, Bruno will have to cut a swath through the swarms of wolves heading his way. Some wolves are masters of disguise, dolling themselves up in pink dresses and lurid lipstick in an effort to get close to their quarry. Try to get through this course as quickly as possible. In general, stick to the ground. Up on the rooftops, you'll find precious few power-ups but plenty of big, bad wolves.

COURSE TWO
West Blowhole Forest

Drop from the tower to the roof below, then leap left to land on this platform. Jump up and two Frosted Donuts will appear. Since you can only carry one type of donut at a time, you'll have to fork over the dozen Powdered ones you picked up at the beginning. Your first blowhole gives you the opportunity to float and fling at the same time. Time your tosses and you should be able to douse the flame-throwing wolf without getting burned yourself. Up on the ramparts, though, you'll have a hard time dodging the arrows shot your way. Crouching and throwing donuts works for enemies on your level. Move fast and eliminate your enemies as quickly as possible.

Needless to say the wolves unleash their air force in a desperate attempt to halt this latest outbreak of swine flu. Be sure to check the tree tops for power-ups while keeping a pigg's eye out for ambushers.

Spin-jump to the tree tops, then jump up and to the left. A crate containing a half-dozen Chocolate Donuts will fall from the skies. Yum!
You’ll have no choice but to run this gauntlet of three wolves shooting arrows at you. You can leap over the slow-flying arrows or break them with your sword. After passing behind a tower, you’ll encounter two more archers. If you have three donuts remaining on your life meter when you reach the last enemy in this stage, you should be able to smite him fairly easily.

PUFF THE BLACK-MAGIC DRAGON
Seeking a tasty morsel of barbecue, this dragon’s head floats in the air and shoots flames at Bruno! Quench his fire with the crates of Powdered Donuts that fall onto the lower tree. Float under the dragon after it has finished firing at you and get as far away as possible. The dragon will move to the opposite side and drift slowly down. Wait until the dragon has fired a few flames, then toss your donuts as quickly as possible. You won’t be able to see the dragon, but you’ll hear its roars when you hit home.

HOG HEAVEN
This partially hidden crate contains a 1-up. You can only get to it by leaping from the tree top on the right, which holds a Plain Donut guarded by two wolves.
The help at this donut shop would love to serve Bruno with an apple in his mouth! No wonder all the travel guides staunchly recommend avoiding this joint. Our heroic hog will have to step lively if he wants to avoid becoming the blue-plate special. Conveyor belts, jelly squarters and deep fry pits all add to his travails. And isn’t that “Hungry Like the Wolfi” playing on the jukebox?

HOLE HOG

Bruno should make like a stool pigeon, flying up from the counter to grab the 36 Donut Holes overhead. Then it’s on to the factory inside. Watch out for the scampering mice, which are surprisingly hard to hit! Hey! Where’s a health inspector when you need one?

PRESS ON

These donut presses reciprocate at different speeds. Take a breather after each one in order to time the next one. Don’t assume that it follows the same pattern as any of the presses you’ve already passed.

COURSE FOUR

Lost City of Swine

Wolff’s pack isn’t scared off by the legends that spirits of the great Pigg ancestors haunt this hallowed place. Fortunately for Bruno, the ancient ones have left lots of weapons along with the usual urns and inscriptions. Watch out for the surprisingly troublesome ravens and rats that have infested the temple grounds. Punish the pests with your handy cutlass.

HEADS YOU WIN

Apparently dragons have a thing for ham, too. This one has an impervious tale but a very pervious head. Unload any frosted Donuts you have left as soon as you see it, then whack the head at every opportunity and pretty soon the green beast will fall to pieces over you. Save your energy on the home stretch by clashing past all the enemies instead of fighting them.
Bruno would love to stop for one of these deep-frying mega-donuts, but duty calls. Carefully time your leaps onto the bobbing donuts while watching for the jelly dripping down. When an archer pops off at you, blunt his arrow with Bruno's cutlass.

Expect to take a few hits in this perilous passage.

A knight in shining armor aims to have sliced ham for supper. A few whacks from Bruno's trusty cutlass, though, will send him running with his tail between his legs. Then, leap through this stack of crates to grab a cache of power-ups. If you miss, you won't get another chance after you touch the Gilbert continuation below.

It looks like the Wizard of Wolff has dispatched his court jester to bring home the bacon! It's tough to draw a bead on this madly gyrating joker, so move quickly. Demonstrate your own slashing wit by swinging as fast as you can, or else bop him with any homing donuts you may have left in your pig's poke. Avoid the deep-fry pit if you can.

This maze is chock-a-block with wolves (bad) and donuts (good). Note the locations of the weapons so that you can return whenever you need to re-arm. Remember that you can carry only one type of weapon at a time, so try to side-step the Powdered Donuts. Snagging the hop at the far end of the maze will take two flybys on the air stream, one to beat the wolf, and the other to crack open the crate.
COURSE FIVE
North Blowhole Forest

Step lively, Bruno! Many of the platforms will begin sinking once Bruno rests his hefty hocks on them, he'll have to move quickly in order to make it through this wind-blown stage. Watch out for enemies bobbing in the breeze and the unmarked holes that will drop Bruno into tunnels.

HOPPIN’ HOG

Ignore the donut holes. Instead, leap past them to cause a platform to drop down. Jump from the platform to a 1-up in the tree tops. It takes patience to grab the prize, as you'll have to ascend a series of moving platforms to get to this point.

COURSE SIX
Gilbert's Donut Factory

Being a creative type, Gilbert has designed one odd-looking factory. Dinky platforms, conveyor belts, tall stacks of crates and blowholes galore make for a tricky trip. There's even a cellar, where Gilbert stashes his extra inventory of confectioner's sugar. Wolff's minions have taken up commanding positions throughout this difficult stage. Count on taking lots of hits before squaring off with the factory manager at the end.

WITH MALLETS TOWARD NONE

The factory manager will try to make ground pork with a flurry of flying mallets. Stand close to the stack of crates and deflect the mallets with Bruno's sword. Then jump up and hurl Powdered Donuts at him. When the manager jumps to the floor, watch out for his big whomp. You'll have to work quickly to beat this bruiser before your health meter runs out.

PLUNGE PERIL

Riding conveyor belts while battling enemies seems tough, but consider the alternative. If you fall into the deep-fry vats below, you'll probably lose a life before reaching the continuation point.
Their homing capability is especially helpful when you’re bobbing in an updraft.

Nifty Lift

Exit the underground maze by jumping aboard a rising platform. When it finally stops, tame the little wolf pushing a big explosive mace, then leap to the left to grab a handful of Crullers. Their homing capability is especially helpful when you’re bobbing in an updraft.

The Pièce de Résistance

Dancing with Wolff

Darkness has settled over the land as Bruno nears the Wizzard’s lair. The top hog won’t have a chance to relax as he whacks his way through the enemies surrounding the castle. Stick to the ground and try to get through the troublesome town as quickly as possible. However, you’ll probably have to do a bit of cave-exploring before you get to the castle. Since the Wizzard himself is full of hot air, it’s natural that his castle has plenty of blowholes. When you finally get to the roof for a snout-to-muzzle showdown, concentrate on bonking the cruel canine on the head. Who’s afraid of the big bad Wolff? Not Bruno!

Cutting edge combos for cutting edge players!
You’ve experienced its bone-wrenching action for yourself, but have you truly mastered the awesome power of Killer Instinct 2? Not only do we have a choice selection of combos for each fighter, but we have the inside track on never-before-revealed strategies and tactics. Join us as we dissect the new combo breaker system, unlock the secrets of Super Linkers and explore the science and strategy of Pressure Combos!

Combo Breakers.

Pulling off a combo breaker in KI was sometimes a dicey proposition. Unless you were an expert at your opponent’s moves, you’d often find yourself playing punching bag. KI 2’s simplified combo breaker system gives you a better chance at striking back. No more futile jabbing at the attack buttons, trying to guess the strength of your opponent’s attack. With the new system, punches break kicks, and kicks break punches. When the first hit of an auto double connects, a window of opportunity opens that allows the fighter being hit to whip out a combo breaker. This “breaker window” stays open until the first hit of the linker. As an added bonus, your second combo breaker in a given match is now worth two hits, the third is worth three and so on.

Some of the auto doubles in the first KI consisted of a punch and a kick, but in KI 2, all auto doubles consist of two punches or two kicks. This makes it easier to see the breaker window. Combo breakers also work against combos that start with an opener/slap/linker sequence, but you’ll have only a split-second between the slap and the first hit of the linker to launch one.

Super Linkers

Linkers were originally developed as a way to include a multi-hit special move in the middle of a combo. Not only are they cool to watch, but they also rack up a lot of extra damage and points. Now the emphasis is on variety and unpredictability. With four linkers per fighter instead of one, there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, more combos to choose from. Two of a fighter’s four linkers are Super Linkers, which we’ve listed on the following pages. Besides adding extra hits, performing a Super Linker when you’ve got a full power meter can turn a normal combo into a special effects-laden masterpiece!

Combos are easier to build in KI 2, giving novices a chance to wade in and win. At the same time, the greater number of combos gives experts more game play meat to chew on.
Much of Sabrewulf’s battle repertoire has survived intact, and he now has the added advantage of his Sabre Flip (Back, Toward + FK) to ward off air attacks. You can also get an extra spin into a Sabre Wheel or a Sabre Spin by tapping Toward before starting either move (Back, Toward + MK or MP). Most players are familiar with these moves and can block them successfully, but the added spin may catch an opponent off guard and, if the last hit connects, allow you to start a combo.

CHALLENGE THIS BIG MAN!

Much of the KI battle system has been redesigned in an attempt to level the playing field yet make the game play more challenging. The simplified auto double system makes building combos easier, but “button mashers” will find that a more precise touch is sometimes needed to execute them. Developers were also concerned with breaking the tedium of the “my turn, your turn” pattern of hitting and blocking and encouraging fighters to use more strategy. The bane of all true and honorable KI combatants is an opponent who “turtles,” or constantly blocks. Turtling allows a fighter to hide his or her time while taking little damage, and then to unleash an attack when the other player is locked in a special move- or combo-induced stall. To counteract this style of play, KI 2 programmers eliminated stalls for attackers and created the power bar to reward fighters who take the initiative. If your attack is blocked, your opponent won’t take much damage, but your power bar will get a boost. If your opponent takes the hit, he or she will get the...
This burly barbarian is slower than most of the combatants, but what he lacks in speed, he makes up for in power. The Conqueror (Toward, Down, Down/Toward + any punch) will ward off most running and jumping attacks, and Trading Places (Toward, Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back, Back +QP) will allow you to step around anyone who gets too close and strike him or her from behind. Add an extra swipe to the Web of Death by pressing Toward as you punch (Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back, Toward + FP).

Tusk

With his trusty broadsword in his hands, Tusk has the longest reach of any of the combatants.

boost. To further encourage fighters to mix it up, the programmers also developed Pressure Combos that will really add to your Power bar. The key to these combos is the two-hit Pressure Opener, which is Toward and FP or FK for most fighters. For Fulgore, the opener is Back and FP. You can follow the Pressure with any special move. Even if the combo doesn’t connect, you’ll still gain half or more of a Power bar for your efforts. If the Pressure does land, you have your opener. The opener can be delivered while standing or crouching.
TJ COMBO

Nearly all of Combo's special moves are based on charge and reverse charge moves, which makes for quick and easy combo building. Combo is great against a slider like Spinal, since he can crouch and block then move straight into a Rollercoaster (Back, Toward + MP). His Role Reversal maneuver (Back, Toward + QK) makes up for the lack of a teleport, but he's still vulnerable to attacks from above, like those from Maya, Spinal or Fulgore.

To keep the game balanced, the programmers had to come up with a way to counter the Pressure Combo, and so the Pressure Breaker was born. Pressure Breakers will interrupt other, specific special moves when used in a Pressure Combo. Pressure Breakers are built on a system patterned after the old "Rock, Paper, Scissors" game. If your opponent uses a Rock move in a Pressure Combo, you can break it with your Paper move. The breaker window opens after the first hit of the opener and closes at the second hit of the special move. If executed properly against the correct special move, a Pressure Breaker will always work. To further balance the strengths and weaknesses of the different fighters, Pressure Breakers were also designed to work in varying degrees against other moves in the same category. One fighter's Rock move will sometimes work against another fighter's Rock...
With so many jumping moves, Maya is a natural opponent for groundlings like Combo and Sabrewulf, who have few air attacks or defenses. Most players instinctively block at low-level, but many of her attacks hit high, which will catch the unwary. Her Spring-a-ma-jig (Back, Toward + QK or FK) is great for offense or defense, but for a real surprise, perform a Quick Spring-a-ma-jig immediately after the first to soar even higher, then execute a Dagger Drop (Toward, Back + FP). This will bring her diving back to ground level, and it works well as a surprise opener.

The Pressure Opener doesn’t have to be the first move in a combo. Whip out a special move before the Pressure Opener, or try a Super Linker/Pressure Opener/Super Linker combo on for size!

move, but the success rate will differ from fighter to fighter and move to move. The concepts of overall balance and rewarding initiative extend to most other areas of the game. Most special moves can be parried with a specific punch or kick, giving novices a fighting chance against more skilled opponents. At the same time, experts are rewarded additional hits with each new ender used in a given match. In fact, if you perform all of a fighter’s standard enders in a single match, you’ll be able to activate his or her secret ender!
With a battle repertoire based mostly on rolling the joystick in quarter circles, Kim Wu is one of the easier fighters to experiment with and master. Her Splits Kick (Down/Back, Down, Down/Toward + FK) is tough to block, and if you use a Fierce attack with her Tornado Kick (Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back + any kick) or her Nunchaku Flame (Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back + MP or FP), you'll get a second hit. She tends to do better against fighters who stay at ground level, but that doesn't mean she isn't much of an air fighter. In fact, her own air defenses are rather thin.

Kim Wu’s Blue Ball fireball can stop a jump-in attack before it starts.

Ken Lobb, Development and Evaluation Manager

There’s no doubt that Ken’s priority in KI 2 is winning! “The most important things to learn are the Scissors, Rock, Paper moves, and how these relate to your favorite character. Take this knowledge into the Pressure game. My favorites are Jago, Maya, and Combo. Learn some combos starting with Jago and Combo’s top attacks (Back + MP); they have the fastest overheads around. As for Maya, Pressure 'em until they fall! She is the Pressure Queen!”
Jago is considered by many to be the most well-rounded of the combatants. Though he takes a lot of work to master, he’s devastating in the hands of an expert. With the addition of the Ninja Slide (Down/Back, Down, Down/Forward + any kick), he now has high-, middle- and low-hitting attacks. For a really underhanded move, press Down, Down/Toward, Toward and QK to “fake” a fireball. He’ll start an Endokuken, then stop. If timed well, you may fool your opponent into blocking at mid-level, giving you the opening for a Ninja Slide.

By now, most players can see a Tiger Fury or a Wind Kick coming a mile away. The “fake-out” lets you be more unpredictable.

GLACIUS

Most of Glacius's moves use the same joystick sequence, so he's a great choice for novices. The Icy Grab (Down, Down/Toward, Toward + QP) is useful for putting your opponent into a stall, and his teleporting Puddle Punch (Down, Down/Toward, Toward + any kick) can now be executed in mid-air! If you start hopping away, you just might fool an opponent into thinking you're retreating, but then you'll be able to catch him or her unawares. If you perform a Quick Puddle Punch, you'll regain some of your life meter in exchange for an equal amount of your power meter. The longer you hold QP, the more power you'll exchange!

Keith Souhrada, Game Counselor

For Keith, KI 2 is a game of finesse, and his enthusiasm is plain to see. “Jago rules! He’s what makes the game. If you’re new, pick Combo or Sabrewulf, but if you play, then pick Jago. Turtles are cheap, but Jago can take them out! If they block low, hit ’em with a top attack. If they block high, hit ’em with a slide. He’s just so versatile. Yeah, Jago can be cheap, too, but any of them can be played cheap. It just depends on how you play. I don’t Tiger Fury all day.”
B. ORCHID

Some players still miss her twin swords, but Orchid’s newly acquired Cat Slide (Down/Back, Down, Down/Toward + any kick) and Lunging Knee (Toward, Down, Down/Toward + any kick) give her great versatility and put her squarely in the same league with Jago. Her Helicopter Kick Super Ender (Down, Down/Back, Back, Down/Back, Down, Down/Toward, Toward + FK) is especially devastating and spectacular to watch if performed with a full power meter.

Orchid is another very stylish character. Mix up her moves and build up her power meter as much as possible.

SPINAL

Spinal was ignored by many players in his original incarnation because his “tap” moves required different timing from the other moves in the game and took some getting used to. It’s now easier to go from his modified Skele-port (Down, Down/Back, Back + any kick) to his other special moves, which are now all “roll” moves. He can dive at an opponent by pressing Down and FK while in the air, but his most interesting new feature is his ability to drain energy from his opponent’s power meter and add it to his own by pressing Down, Down/Toward, Toward + QP at close range.

Draining your opponent’s power meter will keep him or her from unleashing more powerful combos on you.

Karl Dickard, Designer/Prepress, Nintendo Power

It comes as no surprise that, for an artist like Karl, aesthetics are more important than winning. “With Combo, you can be very stylish, especially with his Pressure move and Super Linkers. Or try going straight from a Pressure to a reverse charge to an ender, that’s pretty. I also like to string together Puddle Punch moves with Glacius, like a Puddle Punch opener/Super Linker/Super ender kind of thing. He just flows through it, and that’s rad to watch. The new power meter system forces you to be diverse in your combos in order to go large. 2 rules.”
Though KI purists call them “cheap” moves, they can’t deny that alternating between Fulgore’s Laser Storm and Plasmaslice is very effective for keeping opponents at bay or forcing them to try to move in closer. If you want to spice things up, though, try pressing Toward, Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back, Back and FK to render him invisible, then move in for the kill. There’s only a small distortion in the air to indicate his position while he’s invisible, and an Eyebeam (Down/Toward, Down, Down/Back + MP or FP) fired from the air is a good way to soften up your opponent prior to a combo.

Every door in Smurf Village is open to you, as long as you’re just looking for a way up to the roof. Shoot up through the chimney to pick up any extra provisions. You’ll need these items later on your long journey.

1. Rooftop Revelry

A forest lies on the edge of the Smurf Village, and unfriendly folk live above and below the trees. You can find valuable items here, too. Smurfs don’t weigh much, so try jumping up on a falling leaf and using it as a stepping stone. Just keep an eye out for any rotten apples waiting to fall from the trees.

2. Garden Gallivanting

Sleeping possums keep all sorts of interesting and useful items in their dens. You can borrow their treasures if you don’t wake them from their slumber. Keep an eye out for falling apples as you wander back up to the surface.
TROUBLE IN SMURF VILLAGE

It's a crisis never before encountered in the history of Smurfkind! The vile Gargamel made off with four of your fellow Smurfs and it's up to you to save them. Infogrames's eight-meg, password-backed, Super NES adventure features fifteen long and challenging stages. While the sharp graphics and animation are fun to watch, the less-than-perfect play control might frustrate the young players this game is likely to attract.

  - Berry: Seeds up to Raspberry and remove-a-Life Point.
  - Mushroom: Mushroom conceal surprise bonus lives.
  - Key: Keys unlock the stages holding your Smurfling friends.
  - Leaf: Leaves and save an extra life.
  - 1-Up: Find a Smurf doll to win an extra life.
  - Star: Harvest 25 leaves and gain a Smurf Power Chamber.

TIME JUMPS TO AVOID LUMPS

The Smurf villagers are busily hoisting goods into the upper stories of their abodes. If you don't watch your step, you might get bonked by a bag of junk! Hop over each burlap sack and continue on your journey.

LEAF LEAPIN'

The trick to climbing up the tallest trees in the forest is timing your leaps from leaf to leaf. Hesitate too long and you'll find yourself standing on the forest floor again.
THE BRIDGE

The crafty but klutzy Gargamel broke the bridge leading into town, which is probably a good thing or he would have smurfed more Smurfs than the four he smurfed. Ask your flying feathered friends to help you across the river, but keep in mind that the birds can't carry your weight all the way across.

ACT 4

THE DARK FOREST

This far-away forest is much wilder than the wilderness you explored near the Smurf Village, but there are more hidden Raspberries, Sarsparilla Leaves and smurfy items to find. Take your time and plan your path as you spring across the falling foliage. When you reach the end of the Dark Forest, you'll find your friend, Jokey Smurf!

WATCH THE LEAVES

Just as it was in the Forest in Act 2, the trick to getting around this wilderness is to lunge for the falling leaves. To jump higher, hold down the Y Button as you make your leap. Practice until you can spring from one falling leaf to another without letting your toes touch the forest floor.

Good Smurf!

THE LAKE

Jokey Smurf is ready to take a turn on the journey through Smurf Lake. Use his exploding Surprise Packages to decimate the obnoxious insects in his path. At least the yellow ducks aren't foul. They're happy to help you.

Ducky Dory

Hop on the back of a passing duck and ride on over to the next lily pad. Getting wet isn't what it's quacked up to be, so be sure to carefully time Jokey Smurf's leaps both on and off his ducky friends.
THE SMURFS

SPRING AHEAD
After exploring everywhere beneath the bridge, look for a springy sprout. It can propel you high into the sky and onto the bridge deck. Brawny Smurf can pick up and move these portable trampolines when he stands on them while you're holding Down on the Control Pad.

1-UP LOW DOWN
The top prize beneath the bridge is a Smurf Doll. It might seem a little thorny getting around the wandering porcupine, but if you time your leap as the prickly pest saunters right, you can collect your doll and spring up to the exit faster than Greedy Smurf can gobble up a cake.

1-UP HOLE
Gather up your courage and ride this falling leaf nearly to the bottom of the screen. On the right you'll see a smurf-sized hole with a Smurf Doll waiting for you inside! Impatient Smurfs that leap too soon often bump their silly blue heads on the cave opening.

ANGRY SMURF
A foolhardy Smurf wandering through the Dark Forest was stung by a Buzz Fly. Now he's hopping mad and wants to share his smurfy troubles with you. Leapfrog over the hot-head and let him walk off his bad attitude.

BUZZING BEES
You can jump on or step around these circling bees to pick up the items they're guarding.

BERRY
Ah...the Berry taste of sweet success. If you time your leaps, two ducks later you'll find a Mushroom with a Berry inside.

IT'S A STORM!
The last part of Act 3 just looks scary because a storm is passing overhead! Use Jokey Smurf's packages to clear obstacles, then run to the right until you're blue in the face!
ACT 6 THE FIELDS

While the Fields look flat to ordinary folk, the low vegetation creates a jungle for any creatures the size of a Smurf. Work your way carefully through the thicket, and don't let a dew drop dampen your spirits.

GARGAMEL'S GAUNTLET

Holy Smurf! You've completed The Fields in Act 6, and you're not even halfway through the game! The following is an overview of future stages. We've added a few Smurfy clues to get you through the toughest spots.

ACT 7 THE DAM

Howlbird is soaring above the leaking Dam, but you need to find a sprout or two to spring ahead of this level.

ACT 8 THE SWAMP

Brainy Smurf is on the other side of the Swamp! Leapfrog off the tops of the toads in the water and leap for the slippery strands of vines overhead.

DEW DROPS

The leaves of the plants in this field are heavy with moisture. If you're not careful, you might find yourself soaking wet. Step aside if you see the dew begin to slide.

SPRING SPROUTS

You're going to need a smurfy spring in your step to scale this tall dam. Locate the four spry sprouts growing here and use them to hop up and over the highest walls.

HANG ON!

It's tough to keep your grip on these slick hanging vines. Be sure to keep jumping or you'll soon be gargling in murky, green, swamp water.
The lush vegetation in the Fields makes it a great home for spiders and snakes. If you watch and wait, you’ll recognize a pattern for avoiding the critters.

ACT 9  THE CAVES

Biting bats, boulder barricades and twisting tunnels bamboozle and beguile all but the smartest Smurfs. Brainy Smurf’s candles show you the way.

ACT 10  THE MOUNTAINS

Gargamel’s Manor lies on the other side of a tall, icy mountain path. Since there’s no other way around the mountain, you’d better start climbing.

ACT 11  THE MINE

There’s no gold in them there hills, but there’s plenty of danger! Jump out of the way of the rolling rocks!

ACT 12  THE VOLCANO

It’s a race to the top of the Volcano before it erupts. If you can beat the heat, you’ll catch up to the dragon holding poor Greedy Smurf. Give him one of Jokey Smurf’s surprise packages!

ACT 13  THE DESCENT

You’ve reached the mountain summit! It’s all downhill from there. Grab your smurfy sled and get ready for a wild ride.

ACT 14  THE CLIFFS

The only way to reach Gargamel’s Manor House is by scaling the steep cliffs. Thankfully, someone left a couple of logs across the massive chasm. If you can avoid the ravens and porcupines, you might make it to the other side. Listen for the creaking sound of the log—it’s your only clue that your bridge is about to start rolling!

ACT 15  GARGAMEL’S MANOR HOUSE

If you can avoid Gargamel’s thorns, falling books and toxic poisons, you might have a chance at saving Smurfette and winning the game! It all depends on your ability to push Gargamel backwards off his roof. Perhaps Howlibird’s acorns can help you.
Challenge #1

NHL '96
The Stanley Cup playoffs are nearly upon us, but bigger questions remain: Who has the best in winning percentages? Who can make the most saves? Who can score a triple hat trick in one game? Send in a shot of the Record Holders screen showing your winning slap shots and stunning saves. The top twenty record-holders will skate away with four Super Power Stamps.

Challenge #2

Super Mario Kart
The Mario Kart Challenge continues this month on the Star Cup Circuit. We want your fastest times for the rough and rugged road winding through Choco Island 2. Mail in a clear photo of your best winning times. The top twenty road warriors will burn some rubber as they ride off into the Mushroom Kingdom sunset with four Super Power Stamps.

Quiz

Name That Game!
Are you a game fanatic? Do you know games inside and out? Take the following quiz and see how much you know about the favorite games of players around the world. Look for the answers in next month's issue!

1. You had to find a hospital if you wanted the eggplant off your head in this NES hit.
2. Players could shatter the glass around the rink in the first hockey game from EA Sports.
3. Sell fish in the market for 21 Rupees in this Super NES role-playing game.
4. This very vegetarian role-playing game featured a series of paper, rock, or scissors battles.
5. Forgive Deneb the witch and your reputation will suffer in this Super NES strategy game.

Quiz Answers for Volume #2
BATTLE ZONE

DKC 2: Diddy's Kong Quest

Things were quiet in the Battle Zone until four horsemen rode in from the Central Plains. The fast fingers of James Ray Loewen, Matt Dombush, Steve Caverly, and Tom Lyman blasted the Central Division to the top of the rankings. The West finished a distant second, with their top player, Eric Sandler, finishing in fifth place. Jason Ravera's 3:34 time kept the East close in the contest.

VOLUME 83
The puzzle masters at HAL deliver a sweet surprise to legions of Kirby fans! With 11 stages, Block Ball delivers hours of hand-held fun, and it ranks high in replay value, too. Colorful Super Game Boy enhancement adds bounce to this blockbuster title!

Sure, you and Kirby would love to clobber every brick in sight. But you'll never make it to Stage 11 unless you can get a minimum number of points, called the border line, in each stage. Fortunately, there's lots of ways to make a run for the border. The starred Score Blocks reward multiple hits. Hit a Flip Block twice to convert light-colored blocks to dark ones, which are worth three times as many points. Activate a Round Bonus by hitting the last Switch Block then clearing out the remaining blocks as quickly as possible.

The heftiest Game Boy title yet weighs in at 8 megabits, but there's not an ounce of fat here. HAL has packed the game with more than 10 different kinds of blocks, 22 strange-looking enemies, bonus rounds and a special 1-up area. Kirby can morph into a stone, a needle, a burning ball, or a giant spark, and he snacks on hidden cakes, candies and apples. O.K., everyone, it's time to follow the bouncing ball!
ISLE GET A 1-UP

Finishing the later stages is as hard as a cement block. Get some help by digging up a hidden Warp Star and riding it to a special place where Kirby can win extra lives. In Up Cloud and Air Hockey, Kirby is a plain old ball who's always in danger of rolling off-screen, leaving you with nothing. The surest bet for winning at least 1-up is Up Down.

In Up Cloud, you bounce a cloud up to the goal and receive the number of extra lives shown. Be patient if you want a 2- or 3-up.

Play three rounds of Air Hockey. You receive an extra life for each goal you score.

In Up Down, you flip cards with bouncing Kirby until you get four of a kind. You can add cards by bouncing off the bottom bumper.

For each 10 stars you touch in the Star Catcher game, you'll win a 1-up. If you touch a bomb, though, your chances will go boom.

STAGE ONE

Before you clear the first round, hit the big Score Block seven times to collect a total of 6,350 points. Two more Score Blocks are hidden behind the blank spaces in the second and fifth columns. When you hit the characters strolling at the top, they'll briefly transform into bonus items. Hit them quickly to win extra points.

When you hit the Switch Block on the right, the remaining blocks transform into fragile Through Blocks. Clear the stage as quickly as possible to gain a bonus.

Before clearing the Target Shooting Area, hit as many Star Blocks as possible. They'll cover the spikes in the upcoming major-enemy round.

FUNGUS FIGHT

This shimmery 'shroom casts a spell that temporarily shrinks your side paddles. Protect yourself by bouncing away until it sprouts four dancing defenders. You'll have to uproot those with the aid of your toadstool-hunting cream puff, then bop the remaining 'shroom six more times before you'll be admitted to Stage Two.
STAGE TWO POWER UP

You've been bouncing along quite merrily 'til now, but you'll have to unleash the awesome force of the Kirby Power Bounce if you want to clear this rocky stage!

ROUND 1
The darkest blocks are Power Blocks. You can only destroy them with the Kirby Power Bounce, activated by pressing the A Button just before Kirby hits your paddle.

ROUND 2
Start by going for the bonus characters on the right, then Power Bounce through the Power Blocks, which are worth 500 points each.

ROUND 3
The little whales conceal Flip Blocks, which change the light-colored blocks to high-value dark ones and back again.

ROUND 4
Tune up for the upcoming squid encounter by watching Kirby accelerate whenever he bounces away from one of the smiling Pinball Blocks.

SQUID SKIRMISH
Hit this slow-moving squid a dozen times to make it slink away, leaving 50,000 points behind. Sometimes, though, it will catch a ball in its tentacles and spit it at the lower row of Star Blocks.

You get 500 points for each second left on your 30-second Round Bonus timer, so avoid the Switch Block as long as possible.
STAGE THREE SPARK POWER!

Score through this stage by bumping into the frowning characters in the first two rounds and winning Kirby's special Spark ability. Hot-cha-cha!

ROUND 1
Start your bouncing day by knocking out the block in the lower left-hand corner to activate a hidden Warp Star that whisks you away to a 1-up contest.

ROUND 2
If you still have the spark ability from the previous round, let 'er rip once you get inside where all the point blocks are.

ROUND 3
Maximize your points by clearing out the dark blocks on the right and bottom, then bop the round Flip Block to convert the remaining light blocks to dark.

ROUND 4
Don't let the masked marvel at the top of the screen spook you. Take your time to collect every last point from the two Score Blocks and every Star Block that you can.

Kirby may get stuck in a repeating pattern if you don't slide your paddle or activate his Power Round or Spark ability.

Collect the Score Block, hidden just below the middle of the screen, before going into the Round Bonus.

Those hollow Ability Blocks seem impene-trable, but Press B when you have the Spark capability and you'll burn right through them.

Four hits will unmask the mask, revealing a falling Warp Star. Catch it to move on to the final round.

Don't let the masked marvel at the top of the screen spook you. Take your time to collect every last point from the two Score Blocks and every Star Block that you can.

Mask Mayhem
Move quickly or else the little masks will damage your paddles and destroy the Star Blocks covering the spikes. Although the Kirby Power Bounce can be hard to control, it provides the quickest way to shatter the mega mask.

VOLUME 83
STAGE FOUR

DOUBLE BALLS

How about a nice round of virtual juggling? Trying to keep two balls off the spikes is the toughest test yet of your Block Ball ability!

ROUND 1
If you have any spark left, use it to burn through one of the Ability Blocks at the bottom, activate a Flip Block and clear out the high-value dark blocks.

ROUND 2
Super Bounce until you've squeezed every last point from the two Score Blocks, then flip the Switch Block in the middle.

ROUND 3
The goo-goo-eyed guy conceals a Double Balls block. Don't worry if one ball lands on the spikes. You won't lose a life until the second ball gets spiked.

DYNAMITE MITE

Behind that grinning visage lurks a mad bomber, eager to demolish your precious Star Blocks. Fortunately, he has a long fuse, so hit him quickly. Once one of his bombs shortens a paddle, you can't use it to launch a Super Bounce.

ROUND 4
Star Blocks can save you a world of hurt when you step into the ring with the major enemy in the next round.

FOLLOW THE BREAKING

Ricochet through six more stages of block-blasting fun! The road keeps getting rockier, but you can smooth it out with the help of Kirby's two new special abilities. The needle ability gives you a second chance to launch Kirby, while flame Kirby leaves nothing but ashes in his wake.
STAGE FIVE
STONE POWER

If you touch one of the Stone characters, Kirby will gain the ability to drop like a rock, demolishing everything in his path before ricocheting at a crazy angle.

ROUND 1
Start by bouncing Kirby off the top paddle and into one of the stone characters. Don’t be distracted by the bonus character or you may lose a life.

ROUND 2
Kirby can get a high bonus-round score by getting the stone capability, heading for the top of the screen and rocking out.

ROUND 3
Start by tapping the hidden Warp Star in the lower right-hand corner. It will take you to the 1-up contests.

ROUND 4
Clear out the Star Blocks closest to the sides first, then Power Bounce the remaining Star Blocks and Power Blocks before taking on the mean little moon.

SOLAR ECLIPSE
After you doom the moon with the Power Bounce, the sun will slowly cross the sky, sending scorching sun spots that burn your paddle and the Star Blocks until you make it set.

BRICK ROAD
The cavorting creampuff also meets a brooding bomber who turns out to be a nice guy, after all. When his fuse burns down, he blows up blocks that Kirby can’t demolish by himself. It’s a blast!
Making the Galaxy Safe for Bovines Everywhere!

If you’re looking for the lighter side of gaming, EWJ 2 is the Pak for you. Just because it’s funny, doesn’t mean that it’s easy! Luckily for us, the folks at Shiny Entertainment made sure to program a busload of cheats into the final version of the game, and we have them right here. We’ll also tell you how to get to Secret Level Number 37, and we have new maps and hints for the later stages, including the final showdown with Psy-Crow! As for other secrets in EWJ 2, you may be wondering why Jim is pedaling a tricycle on the cover. Wonder no more. The race was a special stage that never made it into the final game.
Earthworm Jim 2 doesn't have a true password feature, but you won't need one with these stage codes. Just press Start to pause your game and enter the code for the stage you want to reach.

Secret Stage Number 37!

Not enough bacon in your diet? Here are the directions to Secret Stage Number 37 (also known as “Forked” or “Get Forked”), which is accessible from Level Ate. You won’t feel the same about luncheon loaf ever again!

Don’t Get Forked!

Start Level Ate as you normally would and make your way to the first Continue Point. From there, keep going to the right and use Snott to travel across the ceiling. Keep going to the right until you see a hill of bologna, then a single strip of bacon. Stand on the right side of the bacon, jump up and right and use your Snott parachute to float down and left under the bacon. Walk to the left, and you’ll be automatically transported to Secret Stage Number 37. This stage consists of a bacon pathway with forks moving up and down, ready to skewer you. There are power-ups and safe spots at various points along the path. When you get to the end of the stage, you’ll be transported back to Level Ate, just above the spot where you disappeared.
THE FLYIN' KING

It's difficult to see the sides of this stage, even when you use the map view cheat. The Earth Flag is on the right side of the screen, just past the first group of small islands, the Meal Worm Flag is in the center of the screen just past the first continent, and the Jim Flag is in the sea of green ooze near the end of the stage. If you miss something, you can change direction by pressing the B Button. Some enemies will latch on to your rocket cycle and weigh you down. Press B rapidly to shake them off. Your cycle has unlimited ammo, so that's one thing, at least, that you won't have to worry about.

START

UDDERLY ABDUCTED

To score the first two flags, a Chip Butty and some extra firepower, go to the right end drop down the first pit. Walk through the wall to the left end follow the path to the teleporter. You'll reappear on a ledge above the starting point. Walk to the right and jump over the teleporter. Walk to the edge of the ledge and use Snott to swing to another ledge beyond. You can't see the patch of slime on the ceiling above you, so it may take several trips.

SEE JIM RUN

It's a race against Psy-crow and a slew of death traps designed to reduce Jim to a messy smear! Blast the rotating blades and doors, and do your path with Psy-Crow's path or you may find yourself jumping toward a ledge that isn't there. One of the trickiest spots is about one-quarter through the stage, where you must jump a gap and get through a door before a string of spheres drops on your head. If Psy-Crow is in the door first, he'll slam it in your face! The map view cheat won't help you here, since Psy-Crow will appear next to you wherever you start.
INFLATED HEAD

This vertical stage is chock full of hidden items and power-ups, so it's worth it to scan it with the map view cheat before you take off. Besides using the helium tanks, you can also blow up your head by pressing B. To descend, press A to let the air out. Breaking a light bulb will take up to 10% off your life meter, and there are murderous mice stationed all along your route, each armed with a deadly spitball shooter!

- Slip through this wall for the Meal Worm Flag, some ammo, a couple of worms and a lovely Chip Butty.
- A worm and three power packs await anyone clever enough to maneuver around four light bulbs.
- The Jim Flag is located under a ledge, and you'll need to deflate your head to escape.
- Float up and left then drop down to find a worm and suit power packs.
ISO 9000

The object here is to grab the round mouse cages and feed them into the machines, which will then transport you to the next area of the stage. The Hooded Chickens are annoying, but a quick shot from any weapon will send them diving into the waves of paper. If you face the Filing Cabinets, they won't charge at you, and they'll open their drawers for you to use as steps.

LUFIA RETURNS

Never say never when it comes to video games. Taito and Natsume proved the truth of that saying by arranging it so that Lufia II will appear for the Super NES long after it was thought to be dead in the water. Natsume will publish the long-anticipated RPG from Taito this year, with a release date scheduled for May or June. This 20-megabit, battery-backsed-memory title follows in the footsteps of one of the more popular RPGs for the Super NES. For years, Lufia was one of the games that received the most questions from callers to Nintendo's Game Play Counselors.

In this new adventure, which takes place prior to the time of the original Lufia, the Sinistrals have just come down to the land of Lufia to begin their reign of domination. Maxim, a young hero, teams of his special destiny to protect the world, and he sets off to right the wrongs that have beset the many towns. Joining Maxim are six characters and seven capsule pets, all of whom help out in battle. Some of the warriors fight with weapons while others cast magic spells. Capsule pets lend a fang, as well, up to a point. If they take too much damage, they run away. Battle parties max out at four characters and may include people or pets. Your adventurers usually travel by foot, but sometimes they'll need to board a ship, take wing in an airship, or dive under the waves in a submarine designed by their companion, Lexus.

The new Lufia improves on the play of the original in almost every area. Graphically, Lufia II mixes traditional RPG overworld views, in which a small character trumps about a map, with interior perspectives reminiscent of Zelda games. Town views look like they came from the Dragon Quest or Dragon Warrior series, and the town areas contain the traditional shops and characters who impart information. Weapon selections can be made with a ring menu such as those used in Secret of Mana or Evermore. Battles occur randomly in the overworld, but in the dungeon areas, Maxim can shoot arrows to stun enemies in order to avoid going into battle.

As they explore the vast dungeon areas, players stumble across puzzles and traps such as those in BrainLord or Legend of Zelda: A Link to the Past. Even if your party is getting the short end of the sword, you may have a chance to come back, thanks to the innovative IP meter, a feature usually found only in fighting games. The IP meter fills as you take hits and your character's rage builds. When it is full, the IP meter allows certain berserk attacks with special weapons. Another great house-keeping tool is the equipment preview in shops. Before buying a weapon, you can see who uses it and if it will increase their status.

Lufia II may borrow elements from other epic games, but the developers chose the right elements to borrow and blended them into an exciting mix that should keep you questing for 60 to 80 hours or more. The world is vast and the puzzles are many. Look for more coverage on this major epic in the next few months here in the Epic Center.
THE SWORD FROM THE SKY!

You've never seen a game like Super Mario RPG. Led by Mario creator Shigeru Miyamoto, talented teams at Nintendo Company Ltd. and Square Soft spent more than a year developing the most stunning graphics of any RPG yet. The result: fully rendered, three-quarter views that are guaranteed to take your breath away! The story begins with a giant sword named Smithy plunging from the skies into Bowser's Keep. The sword vows it won't rest until it rules the world! Fans wondering if the game play matches the stunning graphics can rest assured: Super Mario RPG delivers the goods, big-time. Mr. Miyamoto has put his magical stamp on this one-of-a-kind title. Mario's quest to thwart the supernatural invaders will take him through bucolic towns, down an underground river and onto a sunken ship. He'll ride a barrel through raging rapids and play a tune by hopping on musical tadpoles. He'll develop a bevy of new attacks to go with his famous jumping ability. He'll even team up with all-new companions, including Bowser himself!
Princess Toadstool was enjoying the sunshine in Mario's garden one day when Bowser swooped down and princess-napped her! Brave Mario immediately sets off for Bowser's Keep. After defeating the Terrapins standing guard outside Bowser's throne room, Mario finds the trussed-up princess dangling from the ceiling while Bowser gloats from his perch atop a nearby chandelier. Before Mario can rescue the princess, though, a giant sword encircled by seven stars plunges through Bowser's Keep!
Mario quickly informs Toad that the princess won't show up soon, then dashes back to Bowser's Keep. This time the front gate is blocked. Hearing a booming voice, Mario looks way, way up and is shocked to see a hideous face on the giant sword speaking to him. It's Smithy, announcing his plans to conquer the world!

"We must inform the Chancellor of Mushroom Kingdom at once!"

Pesky Goombas, Spikeys and Sky Troopas patrol your path. They provide a good opportunity to practice Timed Attacks. Executed properly, they greatly increase the damage inflicted. You can sometimes boost Mario's defense by pressing the A Button just before an enemy attacks.

Vanquished enemies sometimes surrender bonus flowers here. Mario maximizes his HP.

Wait until the spinning red flower faces the hilltop before pressing the B Button to leap.

HURTING THE HAMMER BROTHERS

These two bruisers block the path to the Mushroom Kingdom and hold Toad hostage. Be sure Mario has reached at least Level 2 and has a full supply of FP before going into battle. Defeat each brother with a Timed Jump Attack and a timed Regular Attack. You'll win one of their hammers, which will become Mario's default regular attack. If he later returns to Mushroom Way, he can win plenty of experience points and coins.
The Smithy Gang hasn't yet made it to the Mushroom Kingdom, so you won't have to worry about enemies here. Instead, head straight to the Mushroom Castle, which is in an uproar over the missing Princess. Brief the Chancellor on the sinister developments at Bowser's Keep. In return, he'll give you some valuable supplies, including a world map. It's fun to explore the houses, but you won't gain anything from them.

The forgetful Chancellor will call Mario back several times.

Don't forget to check the castle vault for items hidden in treasure boxes.

'My, you're soaking wet, aren't you?'

Mario meets Mallow, an odd-looking tadpole with the strange ability to change the weather.

For a mere three coins, Mario can spend the night here. When he wakes up, his HP will be replenished, as will that of any companions with him.

Purchase a Shirt and Pants, then equip Mario and Mallow with them for added protection. Also be sure to stock up on Honey Syrups.

Sir, Mario has arrived.

The guards would love to chat, but they don't have any useful information. Instead, head for the vault, then go to the throne room to confer with the Chancellor.

Mushroom Castle

Mushroom Way

Bandit's Way

To: Kero Sewers

Inn

Tool Shop
Mario decides to help Mallow recover his coin, which was stolen by the sneveling Croco. This top-hatted thief tries to stay a step ahead of Mario and Mallow throughout Bandit’s Way. Keep pursuing him, though, and eventually he’ll have to turn and fight you. After defeating Croco, return to the Mushroom Kingdom so Mallow can complete his errand.

CROCO, THE KLEPTO-CROC

Mario should attack Croco forcefully with his Jump and Fire Orb. None of Mallow’s attacks are particularly effective against Croco, so opt for defense by pushing the B Button when it’s his turn. Eventually Croco will reach into his bag of tricks and replenish his HP with a weird mushroom spell. Keep attacking, and soon Croco will fork over the stolen Frog Coin.

MUSHROOM KINGDOM

A dark shadow has descended over this once-smiling land. The citizens tremble with fear at the sight of the Shysters bouncing down the streets! Head straight to the castle’s throne room for a showdown with the usurper who’s holding the Chancellor hostage.

MACK THE BIG KNIFE

The key to blunting Mack is minimizing damage from the squads of Shysters guarding him. When Shysters appear, Mario should conserve HP by choosing defense mode while Mallow attacks with his Thunderbolt. After the bouncing brutes vamoose, it’s time for Mario to Jump Attack the big blade while Mallow replenishes their FP supply.
Prepare yourself well before descending into this dank underworld! Mario's Jump Attack is useless against the disembodied spirits lurking unless he's put on a pair of Jump Shoes at the Mushroom Kingdom's Tool Shop before going down the pipe. The Antidote Pin, also available at the Tool Shop, inoculates Mallow against poisonous phantoms. For the quickest route, follow the capital letters. You'll have to double back through pipe C after draining the pools. However, you'll find that beating the enemies is fairly easy, especially if you have Pure Water.
LOOK OUT BELOME!

This big-tongued, four-eyed demon packs 500 HP and some mighty spooky spells. Equip Mario with Pandorite's Trueform Pin to neutralize Belome's Scarecrow Funk, which changes flesh and blood into sticks and straw. In this condition, only special attacks and defense will work. Unlike other demons that haunt the Kero Sewers, Belome is not affected by Pure Water. Instead, attack with Mallow's Thunderbolt and Mario's Jump.

Y ou didn't think Belome would give up the ghost easily, did you? After evaporating into thin air, Belome opens up the sluice gates that keep the raging Midas River out of the Kero Sewers. Here's your chance to improve your cash flow by picking up regular coins, and even some Frog Coins. There are no enemies here except for the treacherous currents and some sneaky coin-bandits.

Slip into an opening and you'll bob through hidden caverns to another part of the river.

Back above ground, the barrel-jumping event gives you the opportunity to grab more coins.

Save your game, then pay 30 coins if you want to run the river again. Toad's gift of a Nok Nok Shell amplifies Mario's Regular Attack.

Welcome to the peaceable aquatic kingdom, ruled with a gentle webbed-hand by Mallow’s wise grandfather, Frogfucius.

Hop on the tadpoles’ backs to an island in the middle of the pond where Frogfucius will pique Mario and Mallow’s curiosity with tantalizing clues about their mission. Frogfucius also reveals a secret about Mallow’s past. It seems that he is not a mere tadpole, after all! Before leaving, you should inspire the great composer, Toadofsky, who’s searching for a new tune, and visit the Frog Coin emporium and Juice Bar.

Ogres, knights, sarcerers and monsters of every ilk have moved from the battlefields of Zenobia to distant island kingdoms in Quest’s epic strategy game, Tactics Ogre. Epic Center uncovers the magic of this foreign phenam in our continuing coverage of top epic games from Japan.

Tactics Ogre creates a battlefield experience unlike that of any other RPG or strategy game. In Ogre Battle, players create units of several characters and moved them independently over the map. Good units would fight bad units in RPG-type battles. Tactics Ogre concentrates on individual battles. You have just one party, but it can include up to ten active characters while many more wait in reserve. When your party runs into the enemy, the two sides square off on a unique, 3-D map that may contain hills, buildings, streams and other features and obstacles. Individual characters move about this three-quarter-view terrain, seeking to gain advantages. For instance, a winged warrior can fly to the roof of a house and shoot down at enemies. Using separate move and attack phases, you can sneak up behind characters and hit them from behind in a surprise attack. You can also attack a foe, then run away. The battlefield dictates how you move your forces and which characters have an advantage. That’s what makes Tactics Ogre so unusual. Unlike most RPGs, and more like war strategy games, Tactics Ogre places as much importance on the battlefield as on the attributes of the combatants.

Altitude plays a significant role in Tactics Ogre. Characters who take the high ground usually have a great advantage over enemies below them.
The game is set after the war in Zenobia, in a distant land where three realms have divided an ancient kingdom. Denim, the hero of the game, tries to unify the three lands. Helping him are his sister, Kachya, a childhood friend, Vance, a winged man named Canopus and Warren, a wizard whom you may recall from Ogre Battle. With these characters and other friends and mercenaries, Denim marches through the land bringing liberation.

Other forces are also at work. Four gods—Fire, Water, Wind, and Earth—preside over the destinies of mankind. One of these gods will be your protector, aiding your magic and hindering your foes in battle. You must also contend with the god of light, Ishtalle, and the god of darkness, Azmodi. A character's alignment with one of these two gods may determine his or her fate in upcoming battles and your ability to change the class of the character.

Initially, the game seemed slow. Battles may take half an hour or more to complete, but each battle turns out to be a strategic game in itself. The AI of the enemy forces is good enough to keep you on your toes and the sheer weight of superior enemy numbers makes for a challenge in most battles. Like the original Ogre Battle, Tactics Ogre grows on you. At press time, no plans have been finalized to bring Tactics Ogre to the U.S., but Epic Center has learned that one American publisher is interested in releasing the game.
FAQs

In Volume 79, we covered some basic civilization-building strategies. This month, we'll answer some of the more frequently asked questions we've received. Some of the solutions may seem obvious in retrospect, but with a game this complex, sometimes the obvious is easily overlooked.

Why Won’t My Settlers...?

One of the most common questions we hear is: "Why won’t my Settlers irrigate or mine this square?" Keep in mind that only certain types of terrain can be irrigated or mined. In the case of irrigation, make sure the square in question is located next to a water source, like a river, ocean or square that is already irrigated. Some types of terrain can be changed to other types to allow for irrigation and mining, but unique resources may be lost in the process. Swampland, for example, yields only average amounts of food and must be converted to grassland to produce more. You would double food production in that square, but you could lose up to four units of trade goods, including valuable gems.

Where Did My Barracks Go?

Barracks ensure that your troops will be provided with the best equipment and training available. That’s why cities with Barracks and after Gunpowder is invented and Combustion is developed. Why? Both of these discoveries changed the face of military tactics and made then-current equipment and training obsolete. In both cases, your military units have to scrap most of their weapons and tactics and start from scratch. With the advent of Gunpowder, the soldier’s primary weapon changed from the sword to the gun. With the development of internal combustion engines, cars, trucks and tanks replaced the horse as the primary mode of transport and mounted attack.

Where Did My Improvement Go?

City improvements and mobile units sometimes disappear because of a lack of funds. Every improvement and unit costs money and/or resources to maintain. If you fall short of cash, food or resources, the computer will pick one or more items for you to lose automatically. The computer will delete non-essential improvements, like Wonders of the World, before it will delete basic improvements like Barracks and Granaries. If your shortfalls is small, it’s likely that one or two low budget items, like military units or Settlers, will be the first to feel the budget ax.

How Do I Boost Trade and Taxes?

In our last feature on Civilization, we stated that establishing trade routes and creating Tax Collectors are two good ways to increase revenues. These measures don't always pay off well at first, though, and like anything in Civilization, they should be managed carefully.

Consider all the pros and cons before you modify a square.

NINTENDO POWER
Why Do Stronger Units Lose Battles?

When an attack is declared, the computer adds up the attack and defense factors of the opposing units, calculates a set of odds for winning and decides the outcome by making a computerized "dice roll" based on the odds. There are several elements (known in most wargames as "modifiers") that can increase the attack and defense factors and sometimes allow weaker defenders to prevail over more powerful attackers. The only attack modifier is Veteran status, which adds 50% of a unit's base attack factor to its total attack factor. Defense factor modifiers are calculated in the following order: Terrain, Veteran status, Fortification (a unit on defense duty is considered Fortified) and Improvements. Certain types of Terrain can multiply the base defense factor anywhere from 1.5 to 3 times. Veteran status and Fortification each add 50% of a unit's base defense factor to its total defense factor, and some Improvements can multiply the total defense factor up to 3 times. Improvement defense modifiers are always calculated last. For example, let's say a Catapult with a base attack factor of six is attacking a Phalanx with a base defense factor of two. Sounds like good odds for the tor from six to nine. Let's say the Phalanx is in a city on a Hill, which multiplies its base defense factor by two, for a total of four. The Phalanx is also a Veteran unit and is Fortified, which brings the tally to six. The city is equipped with City Walls, which multiplies the total defense factor by three, for a grand total of eighteen. To calculate the Catapult's chances of winning the battle, divide the Catapult's total attack factor by the sum of the Catapult's total attack factor and the Phalanx's total defense factor. In this case, this would be nine divided by eighteen, which equals 50 or a 50% chance of the Catapult winning the battle. As you can see, defense modifiers can give weaker units a fighting chance.

How Can One Unit Beat Two or More?

When there is more than one unit in a square that is being attacked, the unit with the greatest total defense factor (after all defense modifiers are calculated) is considered to be defending for all of them. The other units do not contribute in the battle and do not contribute to the battle odds. If the defending unit loses, all the units of the same nation in the square are destroyed. The only exception to this rule is when the defenders are in a city square. In that case, defending units must be defeated one by one.

How Do I Build a Space Ship?

The ultimate goal of Civilization is to build an interplanetary space ship and colonize another planet. While building a World Wonder often helps you in some way, most Wonders are not essential to winning the game. The only exception to this is the Apollo Program, which is the most complex Wonder of the Industrial Age. The Apollo Program must be completed somewhere in the world before a space ship can be built. If another nation develops the Apollo Program, you may not have immediate access to the information. Once space technology is spread around the world, each nation can have only one space ship at a time.

If your capital city is conquered, your space ship is automatically destroyed, though it can be replaced. The smallest space ship that can be built has nineteen Structural Components, one Habitat Module, one Life Support Module, one Solar Module, three Fuel Components and three Propulsion Components. This type of ship will take 12.7 years to reach Alpha Centauri.
Cheat Mode Codes
Hang on to your bananas, 'cause we've got exclusive DKC 2 codes! We apologize for the delay, but we think you'll agree that these babies are worth the wait. As many of you have found, when starting a new game, you can press Down repeatedly on the 1-Player/2-Player select screen to access a Music Test option and a Cheat Mode. If you want a bit more challenge, highlight "Cheat Mode" and press B, A, Right, Right, A, Left, A and X ("BARRALAX") to remove all of the DK Barrels in the game. Press Y, A, Select, A, Down, Left, A and Down ("YASADLAD") to start the game with 50 lives. If you enter both codes, you'll remove all DK Barrels and start with 50 lives. When you begin a new stage (except for boss stages) or return from a Bonus Area, you'll have both Diddy and Dixie, even if you lost one of them previously.

Pan and Scan
To commemorate the re-release of Super Mario Kart, we've got a new trick that's just for fun. Finish any time trial with no mistakes, then choose the Replay option. As you watch the "film" of your time trial, you can make the camera swing around your kart by holding the L or R button!

Don't bump a wall or object, or the trick won't work.

He's looking good in turn number one!

Rock 'Em, Sock 'Em
Here's another trick that's just for fun. During the game's intro sequence, you can control the robot's punches with the left and right triggers.

Start your game as normal and wait for the animated sequence to begin.

You can take a few practice punches before the action heats up.
Invincibility and Stage Skip
If you're having trouble guiding Woody and Buzz back to Andy's room, these codes will help you out. Go to Andy's dresser in the first stage and crouch on the lower shelf for five seconds. You'll flash when you're hit, but you won't take any damage. To activate the Stage Skip, jump on the bucket of toy soldiers in the first stage and crouch down for seven seconds. You can now skip to the end of any stage by pausing the game and then pressing Select.

If you enter the invincibility code correctly, the power meter will start spinning.

The invincibility code must be activated first for the Stage Skip code to work.

More Hidden Players
Back in Volume B1, we printed a list of hoop superstars that are hidden in NBA Live '96, and now we've got more names to add to the roster! Select the Edit Players option from the Roster Setup menu. Highlight a player and enter any last name from the list below. The player's stats will change to match those of the person you've named!

Walt “Clyde” Frazier
Julius “Dr. J” Erving
Wilt Chamberlain
George Mikan
Bob Cousy
Pete "Pistol Pete" Maravich
James Worthy
John Havlicek
Elvin Hayes
Calvin Murphy

Unlimited Ammo
Are you fed up with getting blown up? Enter M1R0G3 as your password, and you'll have an unlimited supply of ammo for whichever weapons you choose for a mission.

This password works with any stage password. Enter the ammo password first...

...then enter any stage password. Come and get it, ye dogfaces!

Stage Select

A tone will sound if you enter the code correctly.

You'll come back to this screen after every stage.
Stage Skip and Select
There are 23 stages in Titus’s “prehistorik" Pak so we’re sure you’ll appreciate this code! Go to the Options menu and highlight “Exit.” Press and hold the L Button, then press Start to return to the Title screen. Highlight “Game Start,” then press and hold the R Button and press Start. You can now skip the stage you’re in by pressing and holding Select at any time. To access the Stage Select screen, press Start to pause, then press Select.

Into the Ring
Here’s a simple little trick that will help you pummel your opponent into submission. To get a weapon into the ring, grab an item and stand to the right or left of the ring. Jump towards the ring and press the Attack Button to throw the item into it. You must throw at the top of your leap, or the item will bounce off the ropes. It’s that simple!

Control Second World Fighters
Last month, we told you how to access a new arena in the Duel mode. This month, we’ve got a code that will let you command different fighters in the Story mode! Go to the Options screen, highlight the Music Test and select a number from 2 to 7. Now press Up, Down, B, Left, Right and B. if you enter the code correctly, the screen will flash. Now, instead of controlling Shaq in the Story mode, you’ll be playing as one of the Second World fighters!

Remote Control
If you’re looking for some Battle Trax competition but there’s no one around to challenge you, here’s a tip. Select the Battle Trax mode and choose vehicles for both players. Wait for two seconds after the green light before you hit the gas. Any vehicle that’s not activated by a controller after three seconds will be controlled by the computer!
Cheat Mode
Here's a clever but complex code that will let you run roughshod over the Aliens infesting Fiorina 161. Start the game, then press A, B, Y, and X on Controller II. Press A, B or X on Controller I to make a number appear on the left side of the screen. This number corresponds to a specific cheat option (see the list below). Pressing A gives you Option One, pressing B gives you Option Two and pressing X gives you Option Four. Repeat the code and press A, B, or X to add one, two or four to the option number. The highest you can go is Option Seven. If you try to increase the option number past seven, you will instead subtract from the option number. For example, if you have Option Six and try to add four to it, you'll get Option Two. If you try to add the same number together, you'll cancel the cheat mode. If you enter the same code twice in a row, you'll add the corresponding number on the first try, then subtract it on the second.

Option One - Invincible
Option Two - No Damage
Option Three - Same As Option One
Option Four - Unlimited Ammo
Option Five - Invincible + Unlimited Ammo
Option Six - No Damage + Unlimited Ammo
Option Seven - Same As Option Five

With the invincible option, the Aliens won't bug you. In fact, they'll pass right through you.
With the No Damage option, you'll still get hit, but your life meter won't go down.

Extended Morph
A normal morph in Looney Tunes B-Ball lasts about ten seconds. To extend the time period, press Up, Left, Up, Left, Up, Left and X (with the default controller setting) before you change. This will more than double your morph time!

The Extended Morph costs you 50 cents.

Th-utterin' th-uccotash! Now there's two ot 'em!

Even More Continue
We printed a Five Continue code in a past issue, but here's a way to get four more. On the title screen, press X, Y, B, A, X, A, B, Y, Up and the R Button. If you hear Aero give a yell, you'll know you've entered the code correctly.

Be sure to enter the code on the Title screen and not the Game Start screen.
You'll have nine continues, which is enough to see Aero through life's ups and downs!

Experts, shmexperts! If you've got an awesome tip or a killer code, send it in! We'll print your stuff alongside the pros' codes. So what are you waiting for? Warm up your brain pans, crack your knuckles and press those buttons!
Our last Power Passwords Special was so popular, we decided to print a sequel. Here are passwords for some of the hottest games on the planet!

CASTLEVANIA DRACULA X

We printed a few CaDX passwords in Volume 80, but here's the complete list. There are multiple paths through the game and two endings.

SINK OR SWIM

Titus's newest puzzler gives you a password every fifth stage. There's more than enough here to keep even the most rabid puzzle fan busy for a long, long time.

THE ADVENTURES OF BATMAN AND ROBIN

Inspired by the animated series, this game features all the excitement and action you'd expect from Gotham City's Dynamic Duo.

Mega Man first burst onto the U.S. video game scene in 1987, and he's more popular now than ever! These passwords will take you on just one of the many paths through Capcom's latest blockbuster.

He's a little rude, but he gets the job done! You'll laugh out loud through 20 stages of the stickiest, stickiest game play you've ever experienced!
Black Pearl Software presents Pocahontas, a password-protected, 16-stage, adventure game based on the hit movie from Walt Disney Productions. Follow Pocahontas as she uncovers her path in life and learns about nature as she struggles to keep the peace between the Powhatans and the English settlers.

NATURAL TEAMWORK

Pocahontas knows that if she is to find her own path in life, she must learn to work in harmony with nature. The entire wilderness is hers to explore if she and her raccoon friend, Meeko, work together as a team. Pocahontas and the raccoon have different strengths and weaknesses. Switch between the characters by pressing the Select Button, and use Pocahontas to swim across water, Meeko to climb trees. The obstacles in Act 1 teach the importance of teamwork and cooperation.

PALETTE 4E

Pocahontas can step up to higher ground if Meeko nudges a rock down to her. Press the Select Button to switch between characters.

While Meeko can climb trees, he has a tough time making high jumps from the ground. Pocahontas can lift him up and provide a small boost.

Meeko can’t swim. Select Pocahontas and find a log floating in a lake or stream. She can tow the log and Meeko to the opposite shore.

KEEP THE PEACE IN A WILDERNESS EPIC FOR GAME BOY
ACT 1

What lies beyond the next river bend? Explore the first five stages in Act 1 and learn the ways of the animals. Every creature Pocahontas helps on the adventure teaches a skill that she can adopt and use throughout the journey.

WATERFALL RENDEZVOUS
To complete the second stage, Pocahontas and Meeko must travel separate paths. The running and jumping skills taught by the Deer allow you to clear the gap between the high cliff. Place the lost Baby Bird back in his nest before you continue to the waterfall.

To cross the waterfall pool, Meeko must block the outlet with a stone while Pocahontas slides a log across the raging water to him.

CLIMB LIKE THE GRAY SQUIRREL
In Stage 3, Pocahontas helps a Squirrel and learns about climbing. While she can't climb as well as Meeko, Pocahontas can explore any tree that has low branches.

Use the Squirrel's powers to jump from limb to limb. Watch your footing when you leap or you might find yourself falling back to earth.

LABYRINTHS WITHIN THE LIMBS
The tree maze in Stage 5 isn't hard to figure out, but the key to success is judging the distances between each leap. There are at least two places to stand on every branch. Stand closer to or farther away from the next branch, depending on the distance you need to cover. Don't leap until you've judged the distance.

In the first tree maze, climb up and move to the left as far as possible. Make a giant leap to the ground from the upper left branch.

The second grove of trees has more jumps, but the technique is the same. Move as far to the upper left as possible before you leap to the right.
After receiving the power of the Wolf, retrace your path until you find a cavern opening. Now Pocahontas can explore underground burrows.

FEAR AND GUN-PowDER
Distrust and suspicion darken the hearts of the settlers, making them impossible to approach. Use the power of the Wolf to pad silently by the settlers without being seen. A few skilled hunters are immune to Mother Wolf’s magic, so you need to pass by them while their backs are turned.

A BEAR IN DESPAIR
A hungry bear cub has the taste of honey on his mind. If you can knock the bee hive down from the treetops, Mother Bear will teach you her Bear Scare technique.

UNBEARABLE FRIGHT
If you can master the timing of the Bear Scare, the paranoid pioneers will drop their weapons and run for cover. Hold Up on the Control Pad and press the B Button before the settlers raise their rifles.
Tensions are running high between the settlers and the Powhatans. Pocahontas is the only hope for peace in the New World, but she remains unsure of her path in life. Act 3's final six stages are packed with action. You need to use all of the skills taught to you to reach the game's conclusion.

TIME TO TEASE PERCY

Governor Ratcliffe's persnickety pug, Percy, is a frequent victim of Meeko's playful pranks. Meeko can't resist a spirited chase. Climb up the rigging high above the deck of the H.M.S. Susan Constant and taunt the pampered pooch until he runs away with his tail between his legs.

VISIT GRANDMA WILLOW

Grandma Willow has seen many events in her long life. Her wisdom and insight are highly prized by the Powhatans. Pay close attention to what Grandma Willow says and learn to follow your own path. Be sure to write down the game's final password.

WHO00 IS IN THE DARK?

While exploring the forest, Pocahontas encounters a region of perpetual darkness. If she is to follow the path of peace, Pocahontas must find a way to see the road ahead. Climb up to the Owl and ask him for assistance.

THE RACE AGAINST TIME

John Smith is in grave danger. Pocahontas can save him if she reaches her father in time. Find the Eagle and use his powers to fly to John Smith's side. One missed jump or wrong turn results in disaster for both the English settlers and the Powhatans.
You've heard about March Madness, but are you ready for collegiate chaos? Acclaim introduces College Slam for the Game Boy, a one-player, password-backed Pak that scores big.

Modes of Play

Break the backboards and bend the rims with five furious modes of play. Whether you feel like playing a single game or a full season, College Slam has a match ready and waiting.

Head-to-Head

If you have time for only one game, choose Head-to-Head mode and jump into the action. The game randomly pairs you against one of 44 top college basketball teams.

Season

Test your endurance in a full season of College Slam. The Season Matchup mode has twenty teams waiting to take you on. A password option saves your progress.

Semifinal

Test your shooting skills to the limit in the Final Four. The computer picks four top-notch teams in a board-breaking battle to determine the best in the nation.

Tournament

Select Tournament mode and slam down the road to the championship. You'll play against 19 computer-controlled teams in a password-backed battle for the NCAA Title.

Practice

Practice Mode is available only on the Game Boy version of College Slam. Practice your slams and long ball shots without the interference of other players on the court. After you've mastered your dunks, return to the Main Menu and show off your new moves.

Team Edit

Use the Team Edit menu to change the basketball skills of every player on your team. You can use the menu to create talented players that complement your strategies and style of play.

Game Configuration

If you're looking for options and variety, the Game Configuration menu has what you need. Spice it up by selecting the Hot Spot and Power-Up options or adjusting your offensive strategy.
It’s up to you to pick two starters for your team. Do you pair up a long-range shooter with big blocker, or team up two consistent, inside players? Match your players’ skills with your strategy.

EDIT MODE

Use Edit mode to transform an average team into a top contender. Each player is ranked according to eight attributes, ranging from Speed (SPD) to Clutch Play Ability (CLU). Edit mode lets you rearrange the skill levels of all the players on your team. If you need a strong three-point shooter, locate a player with a high Three-Point (3PT) rating and transfer points from another category, such as Stealing Ability (STL).

SUBSTITUTIONS

Turn up the heat on the floor by substituting fresh players. You can call time and substitute players once each half. If you’re falling behind, pick up the pace with new shooters. If you’re sitting on a big lead with a few minutes left in the game, call in your defensive specialists to wear down the clock.

Don’t let your top slammer shoot outside the paint all day. Examine all players’ statistics and base your strategy on their strengths.

Increase your jams by mixing out your player’s Dunk Ability. You can transfer skill points between the player’s eight attributes.
BREAK THE RULES

Order in the court? Forget it. College Slam's rough and tough attitude prevails in a jam fest of gravity-defying leaps and crushing collisions. Unless you're caught goal tending, you won't hear a referee's whistle.

IN YOUR FACE

This is a rough game in which physical strength is just as important as shot accuracy. Target the opposing team's top scorer and double-team him until he's on the floor. Physical contact wears down players, reducing their shot accuracy and ability to keep up with the action on the court.

HOT SPOTS

College Slam has a Hot Spot option for scoring bonus points. The Hot Spots flash randomly, and they vary in value. You have to sink the shot to score the bonus points.

STEP ON A SPOT

If you need more than three points, shoot from a Hot Spot. The value of each Hot Spot is random, but you will always score between four and ten points. You have two seconds to reach the spot and drain the shot before the opportunity fades away. The computer players cannot see Hot Spots.

---

ThreePoint

Go for three! The Three Point power up increases your player's long ball accuracy and your team's lead.

Dunks

This strong D stands for Dunks. Catch some serious air and nail monster dunks with the Dunk power-up.

Speedpower-up

The Speed power-up increases a player's speed. Blast down the court and score before your opponent can react.

Is your player dragging his feet up and down the hardwood?

Find a "P" and renew your player's strength.

Where there's an "F" there's Fire.

Catch Fire and burn up the court with wild dunks and unlimited power.
You know about player skills, tough play and Hot spots, but how about a few winning strategies? College Slam features power-up items that temporary increase your player’s skills. Read on, and check out the complete list of Power-Ups at the bottom of the page.

POWER SLAMS
A Dunk power-up or Fire power-up lets you slam the ball from almost any location on the court. Power Slams are difficult to block. You can also catch Fire and execute Power Slams by sinking three consecutive baskets while keeping the other team scoreless.

3 POINTS
If you’re down by more than a handful of points, it might be time to send your best three-point shooter into the game. If you can grab a 3-Point power-up, you can drain the ball while standing at center court.

HAVE A BLAST
Blow away the competition with a Bomb power-up. The impact of the explosion knocks the other players to the floor, giving you a clear path to the ball and a prime opportunity to take it all the way to the rim.

NO RIM
Your opponents can’t score if they don’t have a rim. Touch the “N” power-up to remove the opposing team’s basket, then grab the rebound and the lead. After five seconds, your opponent’s basket will reappear.

INVISIBILITY
While sneaking into the paint with an Invisibility power-up might sound easy, the computer players always follow the bouncing ball. Fool the defenders with several fakes before you launch the ball at the rim.

Step on the Bomb power-up and knock everyone to the floor.

The Question mark conceals a random power-up. You’ll never know what to expect until you take a chance.

Turn your game around with the Reverse power-up. Reverse the ball in mid-air as you grab the “A.”

The “N” power-up temporarily removes your opponent’s basket. Use the power-up when your team falls behind.

The Invisibility power-up increases your chances at stealing the ball and foiling the other team’s defense.
The Legend of Zelda: A Link to the Past holds a mystical attraction for adventurers. The quest for the Triforce weaves a magical spell on players, keeping them enthralled as they uncover the dark secrets that link two unique worlds. Now Nintendo is re-releasing it—and other best sellers—under the Players' Choice seal. This issue we celebrate the release of the Players' Choice Series by answering frequently asked questions and posing legendary challenges for the best adventurers in the land of Hyrule.
THE TOP QUEST QUESTIONS

Since its release in 1992, The Legend of Zelda: A Link to the Past has prompted more calls to Nintendo's Game Counselors than any other game. Many of these callers are not looking for tips on defeating Ganon, Link's archenemy, but are stuck on one of the numerous riddles and perplexing puzzles scattered throughout the land. This month we're answering the most frequently asked questions about the Light and Dark Worlds.

Q HOW DO I REACH THE BOOK IN THE LIBRARY?

A You need the Book of Mudora to open the Desert Palace, but the book rests on a high shelf in the Kakariko Library. Use the Pegasus Boots to dash against the bookcase and knock the book to the floor.

Q HOW DO I GET TO THE TOP OF DEATH MOUNTAIN?

A While the cliffs and ledges in the Dark and Light Worlds appear to be identical, there are places where the topography is different. From the tile that warped Link into the Dark World, walk up and left to the strange creature kicthen a pink ball. Stand next to the rock wall and use the Magic Mirror.

Q HOW DO I DEFEAT MOLDORM?

A Moldorm is waiting for you at the top of the Tower of Hera. Stand on the widest part of the floor and swing your sword at Moldorm's flashing tail. If your aim is true, Moldorm will collapse on his tail. Strike again before he has time to react. To defeat him, you must hit Moldorm six times without falling off the platform.

Q HOW DO I ENTER THE DARK PALACE?

A When exploring the tall grass in front of the Dark Palace, you'll meet Kiki the Monkey. Kiki knows about a switch high above the palace door. Pay the monkey 110 Rupees so he'll follow you, activate the switch, and open the palace portal.
Q: HOW DO I KEEP THE DOOR OPEN IN THE DARK PALACE?
A: While exploring the Dark Palace, you'll find a room that has four statues and a switch. The door exiting the room won't stay open long enough for you to exit. Keep it open by pushing a statue over the switch on the floor.

Q: WHERE IS THE GOSSIP SHOP?
A: The Gossip Shop is located outside of the Village of Outcasts, in the same location as the Blacksmith's house in the Light World. You won't find much here until you reunite the Smithy Brothers. After the Blacksmith tamper your sword, return to the Gossip Shop and pick up the locked chest.

Q: HOW DO I REMOVE THE CURSE ON MY MAGIC?
A: After you sprinkle Magic Powder on the Statue in the Blacksmith well, a misguided monster appears and puts a curse on your magic. While he thinks he's doomed you, he has actually cut your magic consumption in half. This is a curse you want to keep.

Q: NEED TO INQUIRE ABOUT THE MASTER SWORD?
A: Master Sword? I've heard of that legend.

THE FOUR BOTTLES

IN THE MARKET
The first Magic Bottle many players find is in the Kakariko Market. Visit the dealer sitting on a large brown rug near the Weathercock in Kakariko Village. The merchant is willing to sell you a bottle for 100 Rupees.

BEHIND THE COUNTER
The Kakariko Inn has two entrances. Go to the back of the building and push against the wall between two shrubs to open the door. Inside you'll find a chest holding a Magic Bottle.

IN THE LOCKED CHEST
After you reunite the Blacksmith, return to the Gossip Shop, get the locked chest and take it to the Legendary Thief, who stands by a sign near the Desert entrance. He'll open the chest and give you the Bottle.

BENEATH THE BRIDGE
After you purchase the Flippers, swim beneath the Hyrule Castle Bridge in the Light World. Here you'll find a dozing camper who is willing to give you a Magic Bottle for your quest.
WHERE IS THE MAGIC CAPE?

You can find the Magic Cape after you obtain the Titan’s Mirt from Blind’s Dungeon. Return to the cemetery in the Light World and lift the dark rocks surrounding a large tombstone. Use your Dash Attack to charge into the headstone and slide it back. The grave is actually the opening to a secret tunnel that leads to the Magic Cape.

WHERE IS THE SKULL DUNGEON GUARDIAN?

Many players get the Fire Rod and explore most of the rooms in the Skull Dungeon, but only the persistent discover Mothula’s chamber. After finding the Fire Rod, return to the surface and explore the northwest corner of the Skull Woods. Here you’ll notice the large skeletal remains of an unusual creature. Blast the skeleton with the Fire Rod. When the dust clears you’ll find the entrance to Mothula’s chamber.

HOW DO I FREE BLIND’S PRISONER?

The peculiar prisoner held in Blind’s Dungeon refuses to go outside. She won’t follow you upstairs into the sunshine, either. Shed light on her secrets by tossing bombs on the cragged flagstones throughout the top floor. The holes in the floor allow sunlight to dispel the darkness in the rooms below. Refill your hearts and replenish your magic supply, then lead the woman into the glare of Blind’s chamber.

HOW MANY GUARDIANS CAN YOU DEFEAT WITH THE ICE ROD?

The Ice Rod can freeze minor enemies in your path, but did you know that some major enemies are vulnerable to ice attacks? You can obtain the Ice Rod before you win the First Pendant, but you won’t have enough power to defeat a major enemy until you carry three Magic Bottles full of potion. A hearty adventurer might be able to smite four guardians with the Ice Rod and a sword, but sometimes, late at night around the campfire, Hylians whisper stories of one who defeated five.

HOW DO I ENTER ICE ISLAND?

You can enter the Ice Island Fortress after you have found the Titan’s Mirt and the Flippers. Return to the Light World and swim to the island in the middle of Lake Hyrule. There you’ll find a Warp Tile beneath a stone. Step on it to teleport inside the frozen walls of the Ice Island Fortress.
Q HOW DO I BREAK THE CRACK IN THE PYRAMID?

A You need an explosive larger than an ordinary bomb to shatter the crack in the Dark World Pyramid. The Bomb Shop owner in the Dark World has a special item on order, but it won't arrive until you complete the Ice Palace. After obtaining the Fifth Crystal from the Ice Palace, return to the Bomb Shop and purchase the Super Bomb. Drop the Super Bomb up the steps of the Pyramid and detonate it in front of the crevice.

Q HOW DO I USE THE FLUTE?

A Before he disappears, the boy with the Ocarina alludes to his pet bird. This is the same bird mentioned by the sleepy man at the Kakariko Village Inn. Return to the Weathercrotch at the center of Kakariko Village and play a melody on the Ocarina. The song breaks the statue and liberates the bird. Once the bird is released, be sure to carry it to one of eight different locations in the Light World whenever you use the instrument.

HARD-TO-FIND HEART PIECES

DOWN THE WELL IN KAKARIKO VILLAGE

While exploring the northwest corner of Kakariko Village, a few unlucky adventurers accidently topple off a ledge and fall into a well. This is a lucky break because a Piece of Heart rests at the bottom of the well. Throughout your journey, look for ledges and bluffs to loop off. You might be pleasantly surprised when you land.

IN THE DESERT CAVE

When you visit the wise man in the cave in the northeast corner of the Great Desert, look for a crack in the wall of the chamber. Blow the crack and enter the hole left by the explosion. Inside you’ll find a chest containing a Piece of Heart.

WEST OF THE SANCTUARY

High on a ledge west of the Sanctuary is a pile of five rocks. If you have the Pegasus Boots, dash into the rubble. With the rocks removed, you can walk down a stairway leading to a chest that holds a Piece of Heart.

BELOW SPECTACLE ROCK

A rock outcropping stands in front of Spectacle Rock. From the left side of the outcropping, walk straight off the edge of Death Mountain. You’ll land on a ledge in front of a cave. Explore the cave and climb to the second floor. A chest holding a Piece of Heart rests neat to two torches.

ON TOP OF SPECTACLE ROCK

While traveling to the Tower of Hera, you can see a Piece of Heart on top of Spectacle Rock. Step on the Warp Tile and walk to where Spectacle Rock was located in the Light World. Use the Mirror to warp to the top of the rock.

IN THE HOLLOW TREE

After you defeat Agahnim, return to the tree the Bumphin Brothers were cutting down near the Lost Woods. Dash into the tree closest to the Bumphin house. The huge tree trunk is hollow. Climb inside the trunk and bomb the empty slot in the right wall. You’ll find a Piece of Heart inside in hidden room.

PAST THE BUMPER

A sign in front of a cave in the Dark World proclaims that you can get a Piece of Heart if you wear the Magic Cape. Explore the cave and activate the Magic Cape as you approach the bumper. A Piece of Heart is waiting for you on the other side.
WHERE CAN I COLLECT LOTS OF RUPEES?

Near the entrance to the Desert are two large rocks. Beneath one rock is a room with ten bottles. Take the Rupees beneath the bottles, then exit and reenter the room. You can collect 50 Rupees per visit.

HOW DO I JUMP THE GAP IN GANON’S TOWER?

On the third floor of Ganon’s Tower, there is a small gap in front of a cracked wall. Stand below the blocks at the right end and use the Dash attack to bounce backwards across the gap. Bomb the crack and enter a room containing Faeries. Use the Hookshot on the blocks to pull yourself back across the gap.

IN THE CHEST GAME

A small store in the Village of Outcasts offers a game of chance to any patron willing to part with 30 Rupees. Pay the shopkeeper and open any one of his sixteen chests. You get to keep the contents of the chest you pick. If you keep searching long enough, you’ll find a Piece of Heart.

IN THE CORNER OF MISERY MIRE

If you wander into the northeast corner of the Misery Mire, you’ll arrive at the end of a box canyon. Activate your Magic Mirror on the dead end and warp back to the Light World. Lift the stone there and enter a secret cave. Push the blocks in the cave to get a Piece of Heart.

ACROSS THE INVISIBLE BRIDGE

Beneath a large boulder west of Turtle Rock is a secret cave filled with platforms and treasure chests. The platforms are linked by invisible bridges. Use the Ether Medallion or the Staff of Somaria to work your way through the cave to an island in the clouds and a Piece of Heart.

THE NARROW LEDGE ON DEATH MOUNTAIN

A narrow ledge connects the east and west sides of the Turtle Rock dungeon inside Death Mountain. Stand in front of the east cave entrance and use the Magic Mirror to warp back to the Light World.

A LEGENDARY CHALLENGE

AN UNDEFEATED RECORD

Can you go undefeated through the entire game? After you defeat Ganon, the message, “Total Games Played” appears, followed by a three digit number. The number shows how many times you were defeated during your adventure. If you complete the game undefeated, the score will be zero. Ending with a perfect score is one of the toughest feats in Hyrule. To improve your chances, press Reset and resume play from your last save point when you’re defeated. You can also stack the odds in your favor by keeping your Glass Bottles full of Red or Blue Potions.
Before you can perform an Animality you must show your opponent Mercy during the final round. To show Mercy, stand near the side of the screen and hold the Run Button, tap Down on the controller four times and release the Run Button. Your reeling opponent will regain some energy. The next time you stun your opponent, enter the code for your character's Animality move.

Every contestant in Mortal Kombat 3 possesses an Animality move. You can find Animality codes in Nintendo Power Volumes 80 and 82.

There are several effective techniques for disposing of Motaro in Mortal Kombat 3. When fighting in the satyr's lair, make sure you're always on the move. As Motaro leaps toward you, hit him with an uppercut. You can unload a series of well-timed uppercuts when you back Motaro into a corner and wait for him to jump at you.

If Motaro begins to teleport, jump and nail him with a quick kick. Finally, you can execute a combo attack if Motaro falls down. While Motaro rarely loses his balance, a combo attack damages him more than any other technique.

Keep on the move or you'll find out why nobody ever let Motaro play reindeer games.
After freeing the Whale from the Whale Cove, you will eventually stumble upon Bleu's Desert Hideout on the southeastern shore of the continent. While Bleu isn't home, her house is occupied by spirits. Talk to all of the ghosts and return to Hometown. You will then find Bleu in the Magic School where you first encountered Nina. Look for her on the school's second floor.

WHERE ARE THE WATER AND EARTH SHAMANS?

The Water and Earth Shamans are two of the toughest Shamans to find in Breath of Fire II. You won't find Seso, the Water Shaman, until you defeat Nimufu in her tower. Return to the tower's first floor and explore the passage on the left side of the tower. Solo, the Earth Shaman, visits you after you donate 2,000 gold pieces at Namanda. You must make the donation prior to defeating Evrai. Solo won't join your party if you defeat Evrai before donating the gold.

You can find the Water Shaman after you defeat Nimufu and explore the left side of the tower.

You must make a 2,000 gold piece donation at Namanda to encounter Solo, the Earth Shaman.

Return to the field behind Rand's Home to find Solo.

WHICH CHARACTERS MAKE THE BEST PARTY?

The mixture of magical powers and might of your Heroes, Rand, Katt, and Nina the best combination for victory in Breath of Fire II. While most players are content to build up character levels, you can complete the game in a shorter period of time by combining party members with various Shamans. Bond Rand with Seso, the Water Shaman, and Solo, the Earth Shaman. Combine Katt's physical strength with Sana, the Fire Shaman, and Shin, the Devil Shaman. Nina's magic is enhanced when she joins Spoo, the Wind Shaman, and Seny, the Holy Shaman.

Your Hero, Rand, Katt, and Nina together have formidable physical and magical powers.

High levels are only one factor in a powerful party. The best parties possess Shaman skills.

After combining with the Shamans, rearrange your party in the Parallel combat formation.
The Goldnail is used to make the ships sail in Secret of the Stars. You can find it next to the Architect's House west of Old Hill, but only after Dan joins the Aquallion party. Outside the house is an area under construction. Search the area outside the lower right corner of the house, near the yellow tarp with the red "X" on it. Return the Goldnail to Dynamite in Old Hill.

Looking for the Goldnail? Make sure Dan has joined your party before you search for it.

Search the construction site near the yellow tarp at the lower right corner of the house.

Bingo and Leach are a pair of toughs your party bumps into in one of last rooms in the Bingo House. You can find the house after venturing through a tunnel in the lower left house in Beeges. While Bingo looks like a brute, concentrate your attacks on little Leach first. Leach uses a powerful healing spell on Bingo, and any damage you inflict on the gridiron grinder will be erased by Leach's magic. Use your Heal magic on your party and attack with Fire or Freeze spells. If you're still encountering problems, make sure your character levels are at least to fourteen.

Bingo and Leach are holding a group of orphans for ransom. It's up to you to save the children.

While Leach is weaker than Bingo, her powerful healing spells keep Bingo's hit points sky-high.

After defeating Leach, it's just a matter of time before Bingo fumbles short of a first down.

You won't come across any prime level-building locations until you venture out on the high seas in Secret of the Stars. Treacherous monsters lie submerged beneath the surface of the ocean, waiting for unsuspecting seafarers.

If your character levels are around 25, you should have few problems defeating the beasts and racking up experience points. If your levels are below 25, keep your parties healthy with Heal spells and return to port often to rest and recover. To keep things relatively simple, both your Aquallion and Kusnara parties receive a ship when Dan joins your party and you return the Goldnail to Dynamite in Old Hill. Keep building levels until you're ready to complete the rest of the game.

You need a ship to defeat aquatic beasts. You won't receive a ship until you find the Goldnail.

The best level-building opportunities are at sea, but low level parties should hug the coastline.

As levels rise above 25, your parties require fewer Heal spells and Plums during combat.
LINK'S AWAKENING

HOW DO I DEFEAT THE GENIE?

Any dream of the Genie in Bottle Grotto is certainly a nightmare. Break the Genie's bottle by bouncing it up against the wall three times. Use the Power Bracelet to lift the heavy bottle. Avoid the Genie's fireballs and strike him as he reappears in random locations throughout the chamber. Defeating the Genie adds the Conch Horn to your musical inventory.

The Genie has a mean message in his bottle.

Equip the bracelet and throw the bottle against the wall until it's ready for the recycle bin. You can hurt the Genie once his bottle is broken, but he's a little upset that you're a home wrecker. Keep your distance and go for the safe shots.

HOW DO I DEFEAT THE SLIME EEL?

The Slime Eel slithers around the dark, wet chambers of the Catfish's Maw, the fourth maze you explore in Link's Awakening. You can stand in any of the four corners of the Slime Eel's chamber and never take a hit, but you won't inflict any damage on the Eel either. Use the Hookshot to pull the Eel out of his hole. After pulling the Eel with the Hookshot, take a few swings at the heart with your sword. Keep repeating this process until the Eel is truly heartless. When you defeat the Eel, a door leading to the next room will open. Enter it and pick up the Maimba.

The first step to defeating the Slime Eel is to fish out his decoy using the hookshot.

Any corner in the room is safe, but you won't defeat the Eel if you spend all your time hiding. After you've pulled the Slime Eel from the wall, use your sword on the Eel's flashing heart.

Q & A FAST FACTS

KILLER INSTINCT

Q: How do I change my character's color?
A: Press Up or Down on the Control Pad on the Player Select Screen.

Q: Are there Shadow Moves in the game?
A: No. Contrary to what the instruction manual says, the Shadow Moves were not included in the Super NES version of the game.

Q: When do I get the Eyeball code?
A: Finish the game on the most difficult level without using more than four continues.

---

BOOGERMAN

Q: What are the plungeris for?
A: If you collect 30 plungers in a level, you receive an extra Boogerman.

Q: What are pupples for?
A: They're good for scoring bonus points and running your chances for a date.

Q: Where is Boogerman's life meter?
A: He doesn't have one. If his cape is red, he's at full strength. If the cape is yellow, he's one hit away from being toast.

---

THE GETAWAY

Q: How do I reach Video Mode?
A: The easiest method is to land in the tunnel after shifting to fourth gear.

Q: How do I shift gears?
A: Tap Up on the Control Pad when you see the message to shift.

Q: Is there more than one Game Over screen?
A: No. No matter how fast you go, you'll never escape the long arm of the law.
College Slam for Game Boy makes it to the final four in its class.

Acclaim's collegiate hoopster for Game Boy picks up where NBA Jam left off and earns an A for effort. The development team at Torus deserves credit for packing a fast-action, two-on-two game into the four megabits of the Game Boy Pak. The play control feels natural and responsive, which can be a major accomplishment for a Game Boy sports title. Once you choose your favorite college team, you pick two players from a five player roster. Each player's skill ratings help you decide on the best pair. Out on the court, the action is very similar to NBA Jam. You can play with power-ups such as bombs, temporary On Fire status, Speed Up, 3-Point upgrade and a monster jam from anywhere on the court. In the Season Matchup option, you play each team and continue up the ladder if you win. Passwords save your place on the ladder. Other modes include Practice, Head-to-Head, Semi Final, and Tournament Time. Game end stats include Field Goals, 3-Pointers, Dunks, Assists, Blocks, Steals and Rebounds. Forty of the top college teams compete for honors and so will you if you sign this letter of intent. Read over all the conditions in this month's review beginning on page 80.

Doom the way it was meant to be played.
Nintendo Power begins its coverage of XBand games in Now Playing with a look at the two-player mode for Doom, which players can access now over the XBand modem. Once you're connected to an opponent, a menu of the 22 levels of Doom appears. Players either agree on a selected battlefield or, if you can't agree, the network chooses one for you at random. In the game, you find yourself in the familiar base areas on Phobos, but the hordes of crazed aliens are missing or, rather, all that's left of them is hamburger heaps on the floor. Remember, Doom was rated Mature by the ESRB, which suggests that it is suitable for players who are 17 years old or above. Without aliens, your focus turns to your opponent. It's just the two of you, racing to collect the best weapons and armor in the stage, then hunting down the other player. Players with a detailed knowledge of the area have a huge advantage, both in equipping themselves and in waylaying their opponents. Although this version of Doom is still in test mode, and we did encounter a few bugs, it's very playable and lots of fun. We also found enough Doom opponents on-line so that we seldom had to wait to connect.

Kirby's back on the ball.

Never has so much memory been placed in this size game. Kirby's Block Ball squeezes eight hulking megabits into a petite Game Boy Pak. The basic game will remind players of Outbreak. You control paddles to keep a ball in play. When the ball hits a block, the block is destroyed. The most entertaining innovation in Block Ball is launching Kirby into the fray to gobble up unbreakable blocks. As you progress through the stages, variations in play fields and paddle locations make the game challenging and fun. Within a few stages, you'll forget all about Outbreak, because Kirby's Block Ball will have you frantically batting back balls with paddles on all four walls. Check out the Kirby review in this month's Power Playout.

Great fun with plenty of stages and bonus areas
Where did all that memory go?

THE LEGEND OF ZELDA: A LINK TO THE PAST

Company ...............Nintendo
Release Date ..........April 1996
Memory Size ..........8 Megabits

Nintendo brings back one of the best adventure games ever for the Super NES.

Hard as it may be to believe, some people have never played Legend of Zelda: A Link To The Past. Now is their big chance. Nintendo is rereleasing the smash hit for the Super NES this spring. Although the packaging is new and the price is a low $34.99, the game inside the package remains intact. Link, the hero of Hyrule from the NES games, The Legend of Zelda and Link's Adventures, returns to battle Ganon one more time.

The overhead view gives players total freedom to explore, solve puzzles and fight baddies. As in all Zelda games, the idea is to go everywhere, push on rocks, cut down bushes, talk to people and get into the dungeons where special weapons and items can be found. Shigeru Miyamoto's direction made this one of the most anticipated Super NES games of all time, and it was worth the wait. If you still haven't played A Link to the Past, don't miss the chance a second time. This is a game every player should experience. This month, Power answers frequently asked questions—and makes some intriguing challenges.

Great game play Excellent graphics and sound Great price

MARK DAVIS' THE FISHING MASTER

Company ...............Natsume
Release Date ..........April
Memory Size ..........16 Megabits

Natsume hooks up with the best bassman in the country, Mark Davis.
Natsume delayed releasing its entry into the Super NES bass wars until now, when the other contestants have been out on the lake for a long time. This clever tactic means that Mark Davis’ The Fishing Master will be easy to hook into this spring while other games may be hard to find. The newest basser features 1995 BASS Master Classic champion and B.A.S.S. Angler of the Year award winner Mark Davis, the only angler in galactic history ever to accomplish both feats in the same year. Davis helped develop this game, and he added his own advice and voice to the mix. What sets Mark Davis’ The Fishing Master apart from the rest of the bass school is that you don’t get any unrealistic underwater views in which you toil with the fish by dragging the lure in front of its nose. As in real fishing, the lake is inscrutable and the fish are invisible unless they leap into the air. The game is also fisherman friendly. Catching fish is a breeze. The screen shows both the angler and the lure until the fish is hooked. Once the lure is in the water, the bass—if there are any in the area—will bite. One button sets the hook, then you reel in your catch. According to Natsume, Mark Davis insists that this is what happens in tournament bass fishing, but for video anglers who want a challenge and an unrealistic battle just for the fun of it, they won’t get it here. Instead, the challenge is in finding the big lunkers and adding enough weight to your pile of fish to pin down that elusive championship trophy.

Pocahontas steps out of the Disney film and into a Super Game Boy Pak from Black Pearl.

Princess Pocahontas may have a thing or two to learn about English colonists, but she has the local wild animals scoped. In this Game Boy title, the Disney character and her furry friend, Meeko, set out to stop the settlers from digging up the land for gold. Who will help the Powhatan girl? Who else but her friends, the otter, the deer, the bear and the squirrel. Pocahontas learns skills from the animals after she helps them, and those skills help her progress on her quest to achieve a peaceful harmony between Powhatan and settler. Unfortunately, the development team failed to achieve that same harmony in the play control and design of the game. Pocahontas’ actions are awkward and often unintuitive. Puzzles are often illogical, in the end, the game could be a frustrating experience, especially for the younger players who will be most attracted to it. Fortunately, Power’s review should provide enough tips to get you out of the woods.

POWER PIGGS OF THE DARK AGE

Company: Titus
Release Date: April 1996
Memory Size: 8 Megabits

Pigs do fly in this farcical fairytale from Titus.

Not all is well at the Dark Age Donut Shop. It seems that a rude wizard wants to overrun the kingdom, and the only thing stopping him is the courage and donut supply of a pig named Bruno. Titus once again cooks up a clever, fun action romp in the European tradition of platform games. Power Piggs may not have the incredible graphics of Donkey Kong Country 2 or the outrageousness of Earthworm Jim 2, but it has lots of areas to explore and items to find. Bruno, your main pig, swings a huge sword and throws damming donuts. He also has a butt slam move for crushing through crates, and he can float like a feather when he jumps into an updraft. Unlike most side-scrolling platform games, Piggs provides a plenty of hidden tunnels and extended maps that reach up into trees or castles, depending on which of the nine areas of the game you find.
Fun and fairly challenging. Good theme. Cool moves.

Passwords are few and far between. Hit detection is poor. Some jumps are nearly impossible.

It's a race, a battle, and a whole lot more. It's Super Mario Kart, back again.

Super Mario Kart, one of the best-selling Super NES games of all time, returns to the stores this spring at a special suggested manufacturer's price of $34.99. The action on the race track is just as much fun as it was when the game was first released back in 1992. The racers include Yoshi, Mario, Luigi, Princess Toadstool, Bowser, Toad, Donkey Kong Jr., and Koopa Troopa. Karts come in three sizes: the tiny 50cc buggies, the middle-sized 100cc cars and the hot 150cc racers. You can also race in one of four circuits, including the Mushroom Cup, Flower Cup, Star Cup and Special Cup. Each circuit contains five races on different tracks of five laps. Standings are tallied after every race. What makes the races particularly fun is that you have items like Koopa shells and banana peels to waylay your opponents. If you win the championship, you'll be able to race on even more powerful karts. In the two-player mode, Kartestants can play the circuits. Match Mode, which takes place on regular courses, or Battle Mode, in which you face off against your opponent in a maze course. Recently, Catapult has put Super Mario Kart on the XBand game network. If you link up, you can take on opponents in two Match Mode races or two Battle Mode contests.

Great fun for one or two players. Excellent play control. Lots of replay value. XBand two-player contests. New, low price.

Mode 7 graphics can be a little overwhelming for some players.

VOLUME 83
Baseball season is underway and Ken Griffey Jr.'s Winning Run is rounding the bases toward home plate. The second Super NES game to bear the name of the Mariner center fielder arrives from the graphics gurus at Rare and Nintendo. The result is nothing short of spectacular. Using ACM techniques such as those made famous in Donkey Kong Country 2, Winning Run models real stadiums and super realistic player animations. Since Power's first report on this game in January, the AI and features have really started coming together. Now, even at about 80% completion, Winning Run plays like a first rate baseball game with perhaps the finest fielding of any video baseball game to date. Intuitive controls and smart computer assistance put you in control on every play. Pitching feels realistic and very strategic. You have to think, as well as throw, your way past the sluggers. As for the play at the plate, you have to have a sharp eye and excellent timing. The original Ken Griffey Jr. Presents Major League Baseball had an arcade feel with lots of comic animations. This game has a more serious tone. Although players may break a bat in frustration, they look far more realistic doing it. The phenomenal sound effects include vendors calling out for peanuts and hot dogs, not to mention the sound of cracking bats and the sound of a wild pitch pegging a batter in the thigh. With Major League teams and logos, great on-field action and plenty of stats, Winning Run is lacking only the full roster of players. But that's only one strike, and Winning Run flies over the wall with its playability and realism.
The amazing pink vacuum will appear shortly in a unique, multi-game format in Japan. Kirby's Super Deluxe contains eight games in all, including five adventure games similar to Kirby's Adventures and three specialty games. The special contests range from the strange to the familiar. In one mode, Kirby races against King Dedede on a track filled with items. In Megaton Punch, Kirby and another character compete at brick-bashing with sledge hammers. In the final contest, your reaction time is tested in hundredths of a second as you try to get the first hit against super speedy opponents. All three games are fun diversions, but most of the 32-megabit game is devoted to adventure. Kirby huffs, puffs, sucks and spews in stages filled with edible enemies. Power-up costumes change Kirby's abilities so that he becomes more than just a bag of wind. You can play a two-player mode, as well, in which the second player follows Kirby until he uses a power-up. At that point, the second player becomes the power-up.

"Five adventure games... and three specialty games."

All of the adventure stages are new, but they contain sights familiar to Kirby fans such as the Whispering Woods. It's fast, fun and 100% Kirby, which means you don't have to be a gaming ace to reach the end of most of the games.

Dragon Hopper for Virtual Boy just hopped across the Pacific from Japan where it is still in development and where it is being called Jump Dragon. In fact, the game is all about a jumping dragon, whom you control through multi-level stages of action. Players will also find adventure elements in Dragon Hopper as they explore the levels, talk to helpful creatures and battle minor foes and guardians. But the big thrill is the jumping. Your dragon leaps amazingly high to reach platforms and new areas, or drops down to hidden areas of stages that appear through holes or at the ends of paths. You have to look everywhere, collecting stars and other items, before heading to the end of the level. Dragon Hopper has a real 3-D feel, not only in the graphics, but also in the game play. No final release date has been set, but Dragon Hopper should be released this summer.
The news out of Williams Entertainment is that the greatest thing since MK 3 to hit the arcades will also hit the Super NES this coming fall. Ultimate Mortal Kombat 3 should rock the scales with 16 kombatants, including four returning characters from MK II: Kitana, Jade, Scorpion and Reptile. You'll also get new backgrounds, hidden characters, special moves and more. These shots, taken from the arcade game, show some of the hottest new stages. The game also includes smooth combo action and hot new Kombat Kodes with ten digit passwords. The next chapter in MK history begins in October or November.

Last month we introduced you to Tetris Attack, a new puzzle game coming to the Super NES from Nintendo. This month, we have the first screen shots of the revamped game with characters from Yoshi's Island appearing in the backgrounds. The game itself uses colored tiles that shift laterally to form horizontal and vertical groups of three or more. The fast action game features lots of options and modes, including two-player matches, puzzles and learning modes for beginners or advanced players. Passwords allow you to resume games from your highest level. You can even set the AI of your computer opponent in the one-player vs. computer mode. This may well be the best puzzle game since Dr. Mario, so keep an eye out for it this summer.
You may have heard the old adage, "what goes up must come down." Now, that concept has been turned into a game for Virtual Boy that is full of ups and downs. The four games included in Bound High all involve a bouncing, round character named Chalvo who must bounce off solid surfaces or fall forever into space. Sometimes, the solid surface below Chalvo is a block that vanishes after one hit, while other times it is an enemy that gets squashed. In every case, the trick is in guiding Chalvo to land on targets. It isn't easy. In the main game, The Adventure of Chalvo, you pass through a variety of stages where you'll be faced with new challenges, different platform formations and guardian characters. In the Score Attack mode, you try to get the highest score in the universe. The Random Game plops Chalvo down in random stages—some easy, some not. Finally, the Pocket and Cushion game is sort of a cross between billiards and miniature golf. You aim Chalvo at a ball that is lying on a course with a hole in it. Your goal is to knock the ball into the hole within a limited time. It is one of the most fiendish game designs we've ever seen. You can see it later this summer when Bound High is released.

OLYMPIC SUMMER GAMES

The Olympic torch passed through the Pak Watch office the other day in the form of an early version of Olympic Summer Games for the Super NES. The producer of the game warned us not to expect too much at this stage, but we were pleasantly surprised that the play control for the ten events made sense and was consistent from event to event. (The problem with many multi-event games has been the bizarre play control, which is often different for every event.) The events included for the video version of the Atlanta games are: 100-Meter Dash, 110 High Hurdles, Long Jump, High Jump, Triple Jump, Archery, Discus, Javelin, Skeet Shooting and Pole Vault. In all of the events, the running or leg motion is controlled by pressing the A and B buttons repeatedly. You have to have stamina to win these contests against the computer, but there's a four-player alternating mode in which you can compete against friends for more excitement. Although the summer games begin in July, you'll be able to practice at home beginning in May or June.

Games on the Go

Black Pearl's Olympic Summer Games for Game Boy includes the same events as the Super NES version and, surprisingly, virtually the same play control. The result is a very playable, ten-event mini Olympics. You can play each event, sort of like a decathlon or practice individual events. Just as in the Super NES version, the Game Boy Olympics contains Olympic records that you can try to better. The Super Game Boy enhancements are great, although the music sounds like a direct catch from Bass Masters Classic. If you're planning on being an Olympic junkie this summer, Summer Olympic Games for Game Boy will be a great way to keep the action going non-stop.

Get Your Mohawks Here

In a unique promotion inspired by the upcoming game, Mohawk & Headphone Jack, THQ plans to go on the road this summer with a traveling video game/barber shop where you can play M&H while having your own hair chopped into a Mohawk. Although the game's most visible feature may be the colorful hair style of the main characters, it includes some unique game play elements, also, as reported several months ago in Pak Watch. The most radical feature is the layout of the stages, each like the inside of a cave with shifting gravity. The most recent version of the game released at Pak Watch has improved background graphics and scrolling. It looks and plays very sharp, and so will you if you catch the tour.

Lufia Returns

As a reminder to all RPG and adventure fans, your Pak Watch editors wish to point out that the release of Lufia II from Natsume has been announced for the Super NES. For more details on the game, turn to this month's Epic Center.

Better Bass

The school of bass continues to grow with the second Bass Master from THQ due to be released this summer. Bass Master Classic 2 reportedly contains stunningly realistic graphics of fish, equipment and the underwater environment. The developers have retained the same lure-cam perspective for spying on the fish, but they've also split the screen to show the action above water. This may not sound like fun to those who crave action, but to the hundreds of thousands of bass fanatics, nothing could be better than kicking back with a bucket of worms in the comfort of their own homes. In our continuing effort to serve up the best bass in town, Pak Watch will soon play-test an early version of this game.

Brain Lock

Long time readers of Nintendo Power may remember that we reported on an action puzzle game from Titus several years ago. The game, called The Brainies, involves moving hairy aliens around until you get them onto sleeping pads. Obstacles, bombs and the constant motion of the Brainies themselves work against you, but if you use your brain well, you get the picture. Titus has decided that the time is right, finally, for the Brainies to be unleashed on the public, and you should see them in your neighborhood this May.
Disappointing news for hockey fans: Williams Entertainment has decided not to complete development of Open Ice for the Super NES. Originally, Williams planned to have the home version of the arcade hit ready for release this fall, but interest in the project waned over the past few months. Sources at Williams cited insufficient consumer interest in hockey as one of the reasons that guided their decision. Sounds like cold feet to us.

As reported earlier in Pak Watch, Nintendo of America plans to re-release several of the most popular Super NES games at all time beginning this summer. You'll recognize those titles by the Players' Choice logo that appears on the box. Although the packaging of the games will be new, the games themselves will be identical to the games released previously. The biggest difference will be a new, lower price. Don't be surprised if you see re-releases of older Game Boy titles in the Players' Choice series later in the year.

The upcoming Mission Impossible game for the Nintendo 64 includes several unique features, such as floating cameras, multiple-character action, and sophisticated AI developed by Ocean. The 3-D environment of the N64 allows the design team to create cinematically dramatic perspectives to enhance the action of the game. Potentially even more interesting is the design of the game, which requires a team of characters to work together to carry out missions. The developers at Ocean describe this as a completely interactive, 3-D spy simulation with missions that take many forms. Players must manipulate characters and practice some types of subterfuge in order to achieve the missions' goals. For example, characters may have to don disguises in order to fool security guards, and players may even have to switch characters to use a code to break into an office. It sounds very cool, but the coolest sounds may be the Mission Impossible theme music. Next fall, we'll see and hear it all.

Our goal is to try and preserve classic videogame magazines from years gone by before they are lost forever.

Thanks goes out to all the people who make this possible. From the original editors and writers, to everyone involved in acquiring and digitizing these magazines.

People interested in helping us out, in whatever way possible. Either by donating classic magazines, scanning, editing or distributing them, visit us at http://www.retromags.com

We are only interested in preserving classic magazines that are at least 5 years out of print.

We have no desire or intention to profit from these in any way. So please, if you come across people trying to sell these releases, don't support them!

Thank You and ENJOY!
